1. The Directory's Main Purpose

The directory’s main purpose is to update the present available information on Lebanese Youth and provide a database on Youth organizations and bodies working for Youth in Lebanon. It provides a better understanding of the current dynamics and initiatives that are achieved for the Youth, by the Youth and/or with the Youth in Lebanon.

The directory also analyzes good practices, key challenges and opportunities for Youth organizations to turn their ambitions into a reality, especially within the framework of the National Youth policy (NYP) in Lebanon.

The updated directory strives to create a Youth-friendly interactive environment and promote further exchanges and better coordination among partners.
The NET-MED Youth Program is a regional program being implemented in a total of 9 Arab countries including Lebanon, from 2014-2016.

The key aim of this program is to create an enabling environment for young women and men to develop their competencies, exercise their rights and meaningfully engage as active citizens, particularly in areas of decision-making relating to political, social, economic, educational, cultural policies and planning processes.

The NET-MED program is aligned with and will contribute to the UNESCO Operational Strategy on Youth (2014-2021). The UNESCO’s work will focus on enabling Youth to engage in their societies and will embody the different ways in which Youth are concerned or affected by such work: as recipients of services and activities, as independent actors, or as UNESCO’s partners through their organizations.
3. Literature Review

3.1 Youth and Civil Society Organizations in Lebanon

The Civil Society in Lebanon is one of the most active, diverse and ancient in the Arab region. Historically, most civil society organizations (CSOs) had a religious root and were inspired by religion to aid the needy and the poor. After the civil war (1975-1990), CSOs began to perceive their role as complementary to that of the government and started to be more involved in the various problematic sectors in Lebanon. They started to better coordinate amongst themselves and with other partners. Moreover, globalization has also managed to introduce a set of principles, such as participatory democracy, sustainable development, good governance, transparency and accountability into Lebanon’s civil society.

The Law of Associations states that the number of associations registered in Lebanon reached 5,623 in 2007. This number falls to around 1,200-1,500 organizations after excluding the political associations, clubs, scout groups and family ties aggregations in addition to fictitious or inactive associations according to the 2010 CSO’s directory. CSOs’ fields of activity have varied over the past few years and so have the approaches they have undertaken, ranging from charity to services and development.

Many of the CSOs are Youth organizations that were incorporated in the year 2000. Since then, the number of Youth organizations and bodies working for the Youth is on an increase. Identifying CSOs as Youth Organizations depends on several criteria; the organizations statement of working or having recently worked on Youth issues, their affiliation to the Ministry of Youth and Sports (MOYS) and the Ministry of Social Affairs (MOSA), their promotion of Youth volunteerism and Youth civic engagement, or being Youth-led with young members represented in the decision making process. Some organizations lack such Youth representation in their decision making processes but target the needs and interests of the young population in the areas such as Education, Health, Leisure, Political participation, Culture, Charity, among others.

A recent study on Youth CSOs interests in Lebanon demonstrated that politics was one of the most engaging subjects for the Lebanese Youth where the social media have transformed into an alternative real-life public forum after the difficult realization of the latter (The Arab journal of Social Sciences, Issue 28, Autumn 2014, p.152). In this same perspective, the Annual Report of the French Institute for International Relations (2014) suggested that the censorship and expression control policy could no longer be exercised with the coming of the tech-savvy Youth generation who utilized the internet and the social media to form a new public forum opinion that communicated the Youth complaints and their dissatisfaction with the status quo in particular the deterioration of the political and economic situation.

Ensuring sustainability, however, necessitates that organizations delve deeper into Youth issues, be on a constant follow up, and fully assess the many challenges that face Lebanon’s Youth.
3.2 Definition of ‘Youth’ in Lebanon

Youth is best understood as a period of transition from the dependence of childhood to adulthood independence. Therefore, Youth as category is more fluid than other fixed age-groups. Yet, age is the easiest way to define this group, particularly in relation to education and employment because the term ‘Youth’ is often referred to any person between the ages of leaving compulsory education and finding the first job. The United Nations, for statistical purposes, defines ‘Youth’, as those persons between the ages of 15 and 24.

Youth in Lebanon is defined as the category of people aged between 15 and 29. This definition was based on a thorough analysis of the Youth situation in Lebanon by experts and policy makers especially with respect to their social and economic challenges.

3.3 Challenges Faced by Lebanese Youth

The Lebanese Youth Profile (UN, 2012) portrayed the challenges faced by Lebanese Youth. The statistical analysis of the Youth situation in areas such as demographics and migration, work and participation in economic life, education, health and safety (Tabbarah, 2012) showed the vulnerability of young men and women in all these sectors.

Such challenges of vulnerability of young men and women are further impacted by the flux of Syrian refugees in Lebanon.
A recent assessment report (UNFPA, 2014) indicated that the registered number of Syrian refugees reached 1,030,413 persons by the end of May 2014, with Youth aged 15-24 years constituting approximately 16 percent. The study illustrated how Youth are greatly affected by the crisis in various ways such as separation from social and community networks, including family; discontinuation of formal and non-formal education; loss of livelihood; lack of, or weakened security and protection mechanisms and networks; disruption of, or decreased access to health services; adaptation to a new environment; and an increase in daily free time - all of which may pose a risk for Youth in the long run. It documented also the impact of the humanitarian situation on affected adolescents and Youth in Lebanon.

The analysis of Lebanese laws (Saghieh, 2012) in line with the Constitution shows the structural limitation for effective participation of Youth at different aspects of the society. Lebanese laws dealing with Youth echo a very negative understanding of the role and responsibilities of Youth in society. As such, very limited opportunities are available to most Youth in the civil and political life.

One indicator of such limitations is the absence of student body representatives in many universities in Lebanon. This creates a missing opportunity for Youth to learn social participation, practice democracy and dialogue, take responsibility for their choices, get acquainted with the concepts of transparency and accountability, and practice leadership, along with other skills which help Youth engage in public affairs knowingly and confidently. Nowadays, the student movements adopt a political program where the discrepancy among the political parties’ agendas instigate a rift and disallow a common union action.
3.4 The National Youth Policy in Lebanon

The National Youth Policy (NYP) was endorsed by the government in 2012. Despite the political, economic and social challenges which the country had been facing in the regional geopolitical dynamics, the government recognized the importance of Youth Empowerment in all parts of society and committed itself to 136 policy recommendations. In fact, this policy process has built on the initial advocacy efforts of many stakeholders especially from the civil society since 2000.

In 2008, a group of 5 UN agencies (UNESCO, UNICEF, UNFPA, UNDP and ILO) joined and supported the advocacy by making the policy dialogue more structured, more evidence based and more participatory with Youth involvement. In this regard, a set of preliminary policy recommendations was formulized by experts, which strive to enhance Youth participation, empowerment and quality of life, were provided from the quantitative and qualitative studies on Youth situations (the National Youth Profile, 2012). Challenges faced by young men and women and possible policy options were thoroughly debated by all stakeholders of social and community development by taking into consideration regional and local specificities.

In fact, the process of policy formulation is a unique one at least in the Arab region as it emphasized on the involvement of young men and women in the entire policy dialogue process. Their participation in the policy formulation process was ensured by the National Youth Forum established in 2010 with a clear mandate to draft a Youth policy (as per the Council of Ministers’ decree #80/2007.) A series of workshops and conferences were organized to train Youth from civil society and Youth organizations as well as representatives of Youth groups of political parties on different policy recommendations. The National Youth Forum provided a space for dialogue to Lebanese Youth coming from different backgrounds to produce a set of policy recommendations as well as priority actions. Beyond their political divergences, the committed Youth members continue to work together to lobby and monitor the implementation of the NYP.

The implementation of the policy - which could offer better conditions for the Youth in the various sectors – is a slow one, if not inexistent in the current political vacuum. Like many other Youth initiatives in the past, the slow enactment is not a favoring factor for further mobilization of Youth from political parties and Civil Society Organizations.
4. Survey Methodology

4.1 The Sample Design

In order to target the most diverse and representative participants, the sampling in this directory was conducted in a 2-step mode:

Firstly, a geographical sample was based on the 6 Lebanese governorates which are: Beirut; Mount Lebanon (including Jbeil and Kesrouan, Matn, Baabda and Aley, Shouf), North Lebanon (including Akkar, Tripoli, Miniye, Donniyeh, Bcharreh, Koura and Batroun), Bekaa (including Baalbeck and Hermel, Zahleh, West Beqaa, and Rashaya) South Lebanon (including Saida and eastern Saida, Zahrani, Jezzine and Tyre) and Nabatiyeh (including Bint Jbeil, Marjayoun).

Secondly, a sample that is expressed as groups or clusters was employed in the organizations/associations in each of the governorates mentioned above.

4.2 The Research Tools

Two research tools were used for the purposes of this research: a questionnaire and focus groups meetings.

A questionnaire (see Appendix) consisting of 10 closed and half open questions was prepared that served to describe the organizations’/associations’ roles and missions. The questions were based on the following:
1. The Organization’s Representative Contact Information
Name, address, email, telephone, etc.

2. The Organization’s Identification/Work Card
Name of the organization, establishment date, location, telephone, email, website, Facebook page (if available), president or CEO of the organization.

3. The Organization’s Involvement in Youth Issues and Concerns
The criteria are as follows:
• The presence of Youth in the executive positions
• The organization’s focus on Youth - oriented activities and projects through pursuing their needs in their community and collaborating with them to implement their projects be it on a volunteer or payroll basis.

4. Work Field and Groups Targeted
Based on the organization’s/association’s efforts: that is, examining if they focus on project that deal with citizenship, gender, education and training, public enrollment & freedom of speech, cultural & social issues, economic development, public health, among others… In addition to identifying the projects and activities run by the organization that deal with Youth concerns (a maximum of 3) or those that were assessed by the organization and were based in Lebanon (a maximum of 3).

5. National Youth Policy
The aim of the survey was to learn whether the organizations/associations were aware of the Youth policy and its role in promoting Youth issues and the extent of their involvement in Youth policy projects.
This was accomplished through a questionnaire which was present in an internet based form (https://www.surveymonkey.com/s/2Z2ZFVC) or a paper form. The questionnaire was available in both English and Arabic and was conducted between March 24th and May 9th, 2015.

The paper form was handed and filled in during the Focus Group Meetings (FGMs) and collected by the research team.

In total, 118 CSO/NGOs attended the FGMs and filled in the questionnaire, either online or on paper (2 questionnaires were filled in separately from those meetings). The number of partially filled questionnaires is 53 (one or more of the questions were skipped intentionally).

All the answered questions from the 120 questionnaires were taken into account.

The number of collected questionnaires is quite satisfactory compared to previous directories: the Youth organizations directory (UN, 2014) captures exactly 103 CSOs. Furthermore, there have been similar efforts mapping Youth and civil society organizations and actions in 2014-2015 by EU and other UN agencies. The present directory showcases the active CSOs.
As for Focus Group Meetings (FGMs), a total of 6 meetings (one per governorate) were held and a total of 118 organizations attended. The FGMs were held to identify good practices, to understand the challenges faced by the organizations and to evaluate their awareness related to the National Youth Policy process.

The data from the questionnaires, FGMs, and literature review were collected and analyzed for identifying the following:

- the evolution of Youth organizations in function of the year of establishment
- the ways of involvement of young men and women;
- the priority areas and interventions;
- the good practices on Youth empowerment
  1. within the CSOs;
  2. throughout the CSOs’ interventions;
- the understanding of the NYP process

5.1 The Evolution of Youth Organizations in Function of the Year of Establishment

The year of establishment of 116 organizations were analyzed.
According to the diagram, the peak of new established Youth Organizations occurred in the year 2000. From then thereof, the advance of the number of Youth Organizations establishment is relevant, especially in the years 2005 and 2006 and also between 2008 and 2012.

5.2 Ways of Involvement of Young Men and Women

The questionnaire tried to identify the ways of involvement of young men and women through probing if the organizations were:

- Youth-led: the representation of Youth in the executive positions.
- Youth-targeted: the organizations focus on Youth oriented activities and projects through the pursuit of their needs in the community.
- Youth-consulting: conducting regular consultations with Youth groups
- Youth-mobilizing and Hiring: effectively running a group of Youth volunteers or hiring Youth staff on a payroll.
- Collaborating with the Youth to implement their projects be it on a volunteer or payroll basis.
Responses were as follows:

<td>15.15%</td>

</tbody>

N = 35

The table, based on the answers, shows that 77.14% of Youth-led organizations have a representation of young members in the management structure which could be an indicator of the manifestation of the Youth in the executive positions. The Youth targeting entry shows a full score for ongoing programs/projects targeting...
Youth as beneficiaries, 96.97% of organizations are Youth consulting and 84.85% are mobilizing Youth as paid staff, carry a joint implementation with Youth, or run Youth volunteer mechanisms.

Nevertheless, the numbers of those who didn’t answer these questions (and the discussions of the FGMs) showed that many of the participating organizations have failed to replace the old members by Young ones and/or have halted their work temporarily or permanently.

5.3 The Priority Areas and Interventions

Organizations/associations work efforts: those set of questions inspected whether the participating organizations were implementing projects that deal with citizenship, gender, education and training, public enrollment & freedom of speech, cultural & social issues, economic development, health, among others. The answers were as follows:
According to those who answered the questions above, the most relevant work fields of the Youth Organizations were: conflict resolution, peace building and social cohesion (22.58%) and citizenship (16.13%).

However, many organizations have deviated from their mission statements which is revealed from the number of those who didn’t answer these questions and the discussions conducted in the Focus Group Meetings.

5.4 Good Practices on Youth Empowerment

5.4.1 Within the Civil Society Organizations

Organizations were asked to share current and recent good practices on Youth Empowerment based on their projects and activities. Some of the relevant answers dealt with:

- ‘Youth Club’

  The Youth club is an initiative launched by Creadel. It provides job creation, social intervention and case management ongoing Youth feedback in the design and implementation of a project.

- ‘Leadership Academy for Students’

  The leadership academy for students is a program for students, launched by Al-Marada, Youth. It’s designed to build leadership competencies within future ‘leaders’. Participants will learn specific skills relating to leading change, communicating effectively, and tackling other leadership challenges they will face in their careers.

- ‘Youth Councils’ Project: Participation in Decision making’

  Created by SAWA group, this Youth council is an entity of young people that serves an advisory or advocacy body to ministries or municipalities. Most often, its role is to identify priorities and contribute to the implementation of these policies through public services.
5.4.2 Through the CSO’s Endeavors in Lebanon

Organizations were asked to share current and recent good practices on Youth Empowerment, through their Endeavors in Lebanon.

Some of the relevant good practices shared were as follows:

1. The Rene Moawad Foundation’s support of Youth in Tripoli to prevent school drop-outs and provide life skills and vocational training for those who are out of school.

2. Program of Lebanese Red Cross – Youth Department with Youth empowerment as the main component. An example of such program is the UNICEF/EU-funded ABC project where 1200 Youth (Lebanese and Syrian) graduated over the last 9 months and acquired new skills, many among which joined afterwards the LRC Youth as volunteers.

3. ‘Alwan Club for Non-formal Education on Active Citizenship’

   Alwan Club for non-formal education on active citizenship. Alwan 2014/2015 is a project commenced by ADYAN that focuses on “Education on Living Together through Civic Engagement”. “Alwan” is an award-winning educational program integrated in Lebanese private and public high-schools in the form of Youth Clubs which aims at fostering the role of Youth as active citizens for peace building in the framework of inclusive citizenship through Youth training and common engagement activities. These practices aim to empower Youth members within organizations and could serve as a good example to other organizations to reproduce or to build upon for further empowerment.
5.5 Awareness on the NYP Process

The questionnaire included a set of questions that dealt with the NYP process. The questions and the corresponding filled-out answers were as shown in the chart and table below:

National Youth Policy Process in Lebanon

- Are you aware of the National Youth Policy document and process?
  - Yes: 80%
  - No: 20%

- Have you been involved in any stage of the Youth Policy formulation process (2000 -2012)?
  - Yes: 70%
  - No: 30%

- Do you wish to be at least informed on the progress of the National Youth Policy implementation?
  - Yes: 90%
  - No: 10%

- Do you wish to take part actively in the implementation and monitoring process (currently/forthcoming) of the National Youth Policy?
  - Yes: 95%
  - No: 5%

N = 45
The total number of responses to this set of questions was 45. Out of those 45 Youth Organizations, more than one third had been involved at one stage in the Youth Policy formulation process but the majority (76.67%) were not aware of the final National Youth Policy document and its current implementation status. All participating organizations showed an interest in being informed and eventually involved in the policy implementation and monitoring process.
5.6 Limitations

Despite the considerable efforts, the present directory has some limitations. The most significant limitation was the difficulty of obtaining responses from all contacted organizations. Many Organizations were hesitant to respond to our call and/or were unwilling to disclose their working activities. Other limitations involved the age of some organizations’ members which have failed to replace their old members. In addition, some organizations have halted their work temporarily or permanently for financial or other reasons. Other organizations are active in areas that are not in sync with their mission statement. Such a deviation in interests might be due to the availability of funds in areas other than the issues of Youth.

Contrary to our expectation, the online survey was met with very little enthusiasm. We got better responses during the focus group meetings, which provided to the Youth organizations the space for discussions.

In spite of our efforts of outreach, the sample size is rather small. This leads to two hypotheses:

1. our directory might have missed some active organizations;
2. there are not as many active Youth Organizations as stated.
