

Programme for Sensitization: Kenya Federation of UNESCO Clubs, Centres and Association

Theme: UNESCOS Clubs for a Culture of Peace and Non-Violence

Venue: Kenya School of Monetary Studies (KSMS)

Date: 13-14 October, 2015

The United Nations is both a participant in and a witness to an increasingly global civil society. In a rapidly changing context of global affairs, the interactions of the non-state actors have become indispensable partners for United Nations efforts. This renewed global partnership with civil society not only enhances democratic governance and strengthens the call for universal peace and larger freedoms, but also shapes innovative initiatives in social, economic, environmental and human dimensions of sustainable development that are impacting policies both within and beyond the UN system.

In this regard, one of UNESCO's successes as a specialized agency of the United Nations, has been due, in part, to the active role that civil society plays, in meeting the challenges of today's world in Education, Sciences, Culture and Communication. UNESCO has been engaging with civil society partners in its action to maximize the ways it carries out its mission in creating synergies of expertise that generate and also promote the sharing of knowledge.

KENYA UNESCO Clubs:
For a Culture of Peace and Non-Violence

A Practical Guide

UNESCO Clubs in particular have always played an important role in continually lending a fresh perspective under local ownership to foster UNESCO's values and principles. The Clubs, Centres and Associations of UNESCO are groups of volunteers of different ages and socio-professional status who advocate for UNESCO's ideals. They strive to build networks among people that enable solidarity through supporting Education for All as a fundamental human right and as a basis for human development. Furthermore, they encourage dialogue between cultures as a learning experience and as support for cultural diversity and understanding. It is these forms of public outreach that promote communication and cooperation in strengthening the ties between nations and societies.

UNESCO Regional Office for Eastern Africa, together with Kenya National Commission for UNESCO is organizing a sensitization workshop for to revitalize the Clubs, Centres and Associations of UNESCO on 13-14 October, 2015 at KSMS. The foundation of UNESCO clubs is the premise drawn from the Preamble of the UNESCO Constitution which states that "a peace based exclusively upon political and economic arrangements of governments would not be peace which could secure unanimous, lasting, sincere support from people of the world" without calling upon local residents to cooperate and learn from one another both domestically and internationally.
