The objectives of EUARCE are to preserve, archive, digitise and make publicly-available tangible and intangible elements of the oldest music of the people who inhabit the geography of what historically is known as the lands of the Eastern Roman Empire. EUARCE especially strives to collect and preserve the Byzantine Musical legacy along with the musical culture and civilisation of these people. Inherent in this musical culture is folk and ecclesiastic poetry, the folk poetry and songs of the Aegean and Ionian Islands as well as that of Crete, the folk music and poetry of Middle Age-post-revolutionary Greece as well as the orally-transmitted poetic and musical traditions of the Greek-speaking communities and peoples of the Eastern Roman Empire. Last, Byzantine culture also extends to the art and literature that was influenced by, and that influenced the musical elements, generally, of the peoples of the Eastern Roman Empire.

The music of the Eastern Roman Empire, generally referred to as Byzantine Music and its evolution into the branches of folk music of Eastern Europe, the Balkans and the former geography of Anatolia, remains obscure and much of this intangible element, along with the associated literature, is dangerously-close to disappearance or perversion by the influence of modern innovations.

Our Center is uniquely-positioned, with expert internationally-renowned membership to serve as a parexcellence vehicle to preserve the most authentic expressions of Byzantine Musical Culture that survive today in Eastern Europe, the Balkans, Turkey, Russia, Ukraine and Georgia, and, with our technical abilities, to safeguard and make it available to the world for scholarly and non-scholarly study and appreciation.
