

A close-up photograph of a hand holding a baby's foot, symbolizing care and support. The hand is positioned at the top and right, with fingers gently gripping the foot. The baby's foot is the central focus, showing the toes and the sole. The background is softly blurred, showing more of the hand and the baby's body. The overall tone is warm and intimate.

How can the youth become a solution, not a problem?

Miika Tomi
Representative of the 7th
UNESCO Youth Forum

We regard youth as energetic and full of life, yet we treat them as passive objects: a source for trouble or a mere target of schooling.

A night view of a city, likely Copenhagen, with a full moon in the sky. The city is illuminated by streetlights and building lights, and the sea is visible in the background. The text is overlaid on the image.

Knowing the answers is not enough. Even if they are all correct.

A woman with her hair in a ponytail and a large black dog are sitting on a beach at sunset. The woman is on the left, looking towards the right. The dog is on the right, sitting upright and looking towards the left. The sun is low on the horizon, creating a bright glow and reflecting on the water. The text is overlaid in the center of the image.

A structural problem: when youth are not listened they no longer
want to contribute to the society.

Listening to youth means releasing their full potential and teaching them new skills.

People who learn to teach themselves will succeed in future labour markets.

Inspiring incentives and advice will pave the way to professional life.

Give youth a voice, release their potential and
teach them new skills.

The world will say 谢谢 / Xièxie!

