NEQMAP

Network on Education Quality
Monitoring in the Asia-Pacific

In recognition of growing interest in the Asia-Pacific region in sharing and exchanging experiences and best practices around the theme of monitoring of educational quality, UNESCO's Asia-Pacific Regional Bureau for Education (UNESCO Bangkok) established NEQMAP on 28 March 2013 in Bangkok, Thailand.

The diagram below shows our theory of change - that if countries/jurisdictions of the region are able to regularly share and exchange experiences and best practices, if analytical work is undertaken around areas of concern in order to produce knowledge to inform policy, and if the capacity of institutions and systems to better monitor learning is built as needed, learning would be improved in education systems.

Analytical work to produce knowledge

Regular sharing and exchange of experiences and best practices

Capacity building of institutions and systems to better monitor learning

Improved learning in education systems in the Asia-Pacific

The network provides a platform for exchanging of expertise, experiences and lessons to improve the quality of learning in Asia-Pacific.

Focus:

The network will focus on assessment as the key tool for monitoring learning, while acknowledging the importance of maintaining strong linkages with other enablers of learning in the classroom including curriculum and pedagogy.

Modalities:

- ▶ Knowledge sharing
- ▶ Research
- ▶ Capacity building
