

Reforming the Academic Structure

A Multi-pronged Approach to Fostering Collaboration and Learning Communities

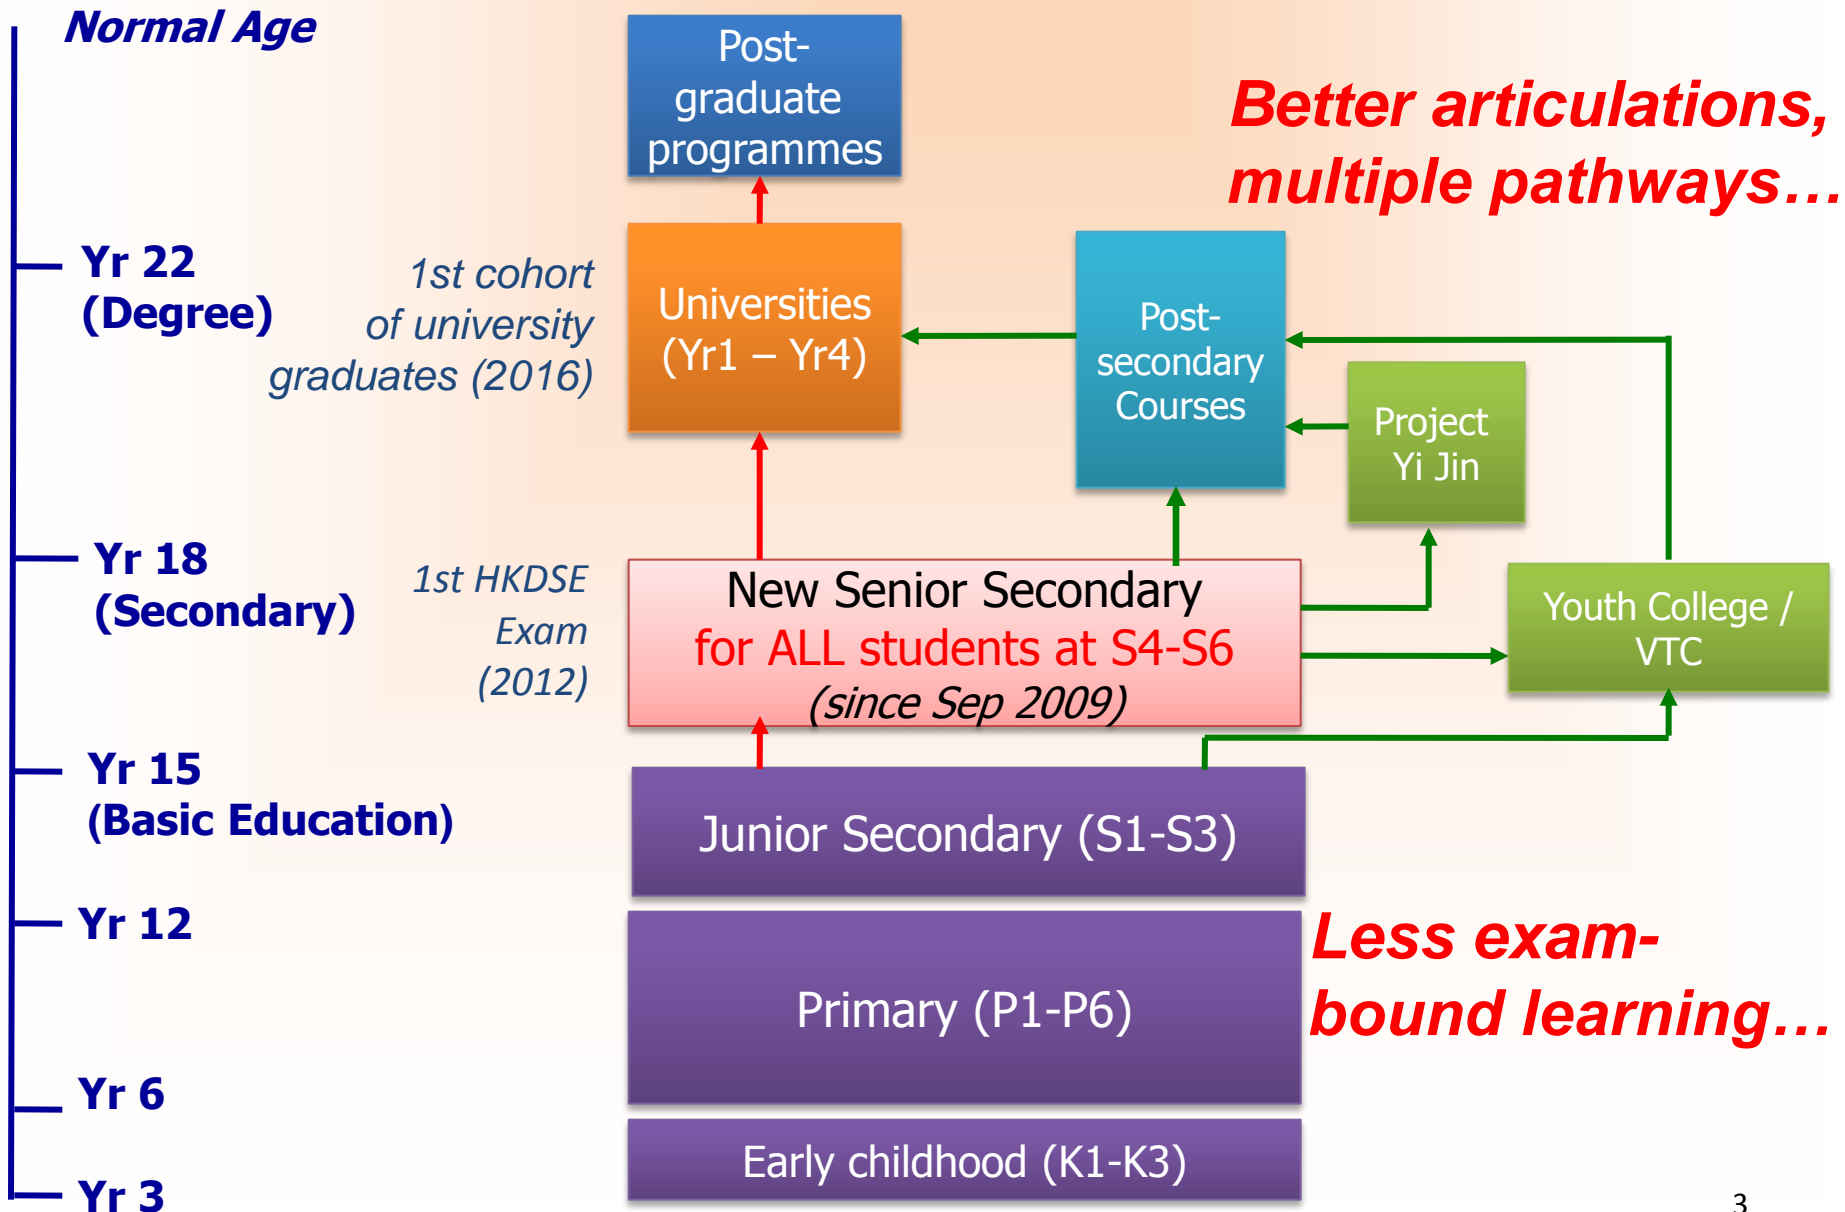

Dr Catherine K K CHAN
Deputy Secretary, Education Bureau, Hong Kong SAR
22 November 2012

Why a New Academic Structure (NAS)?

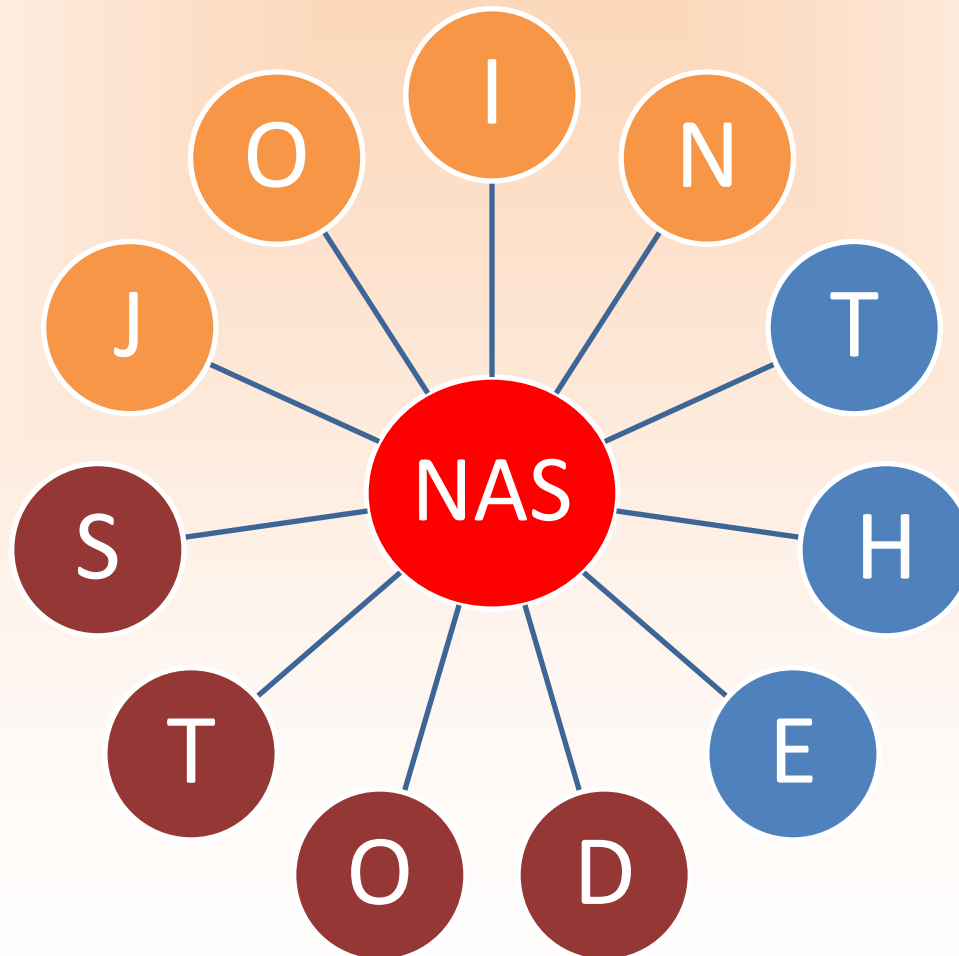

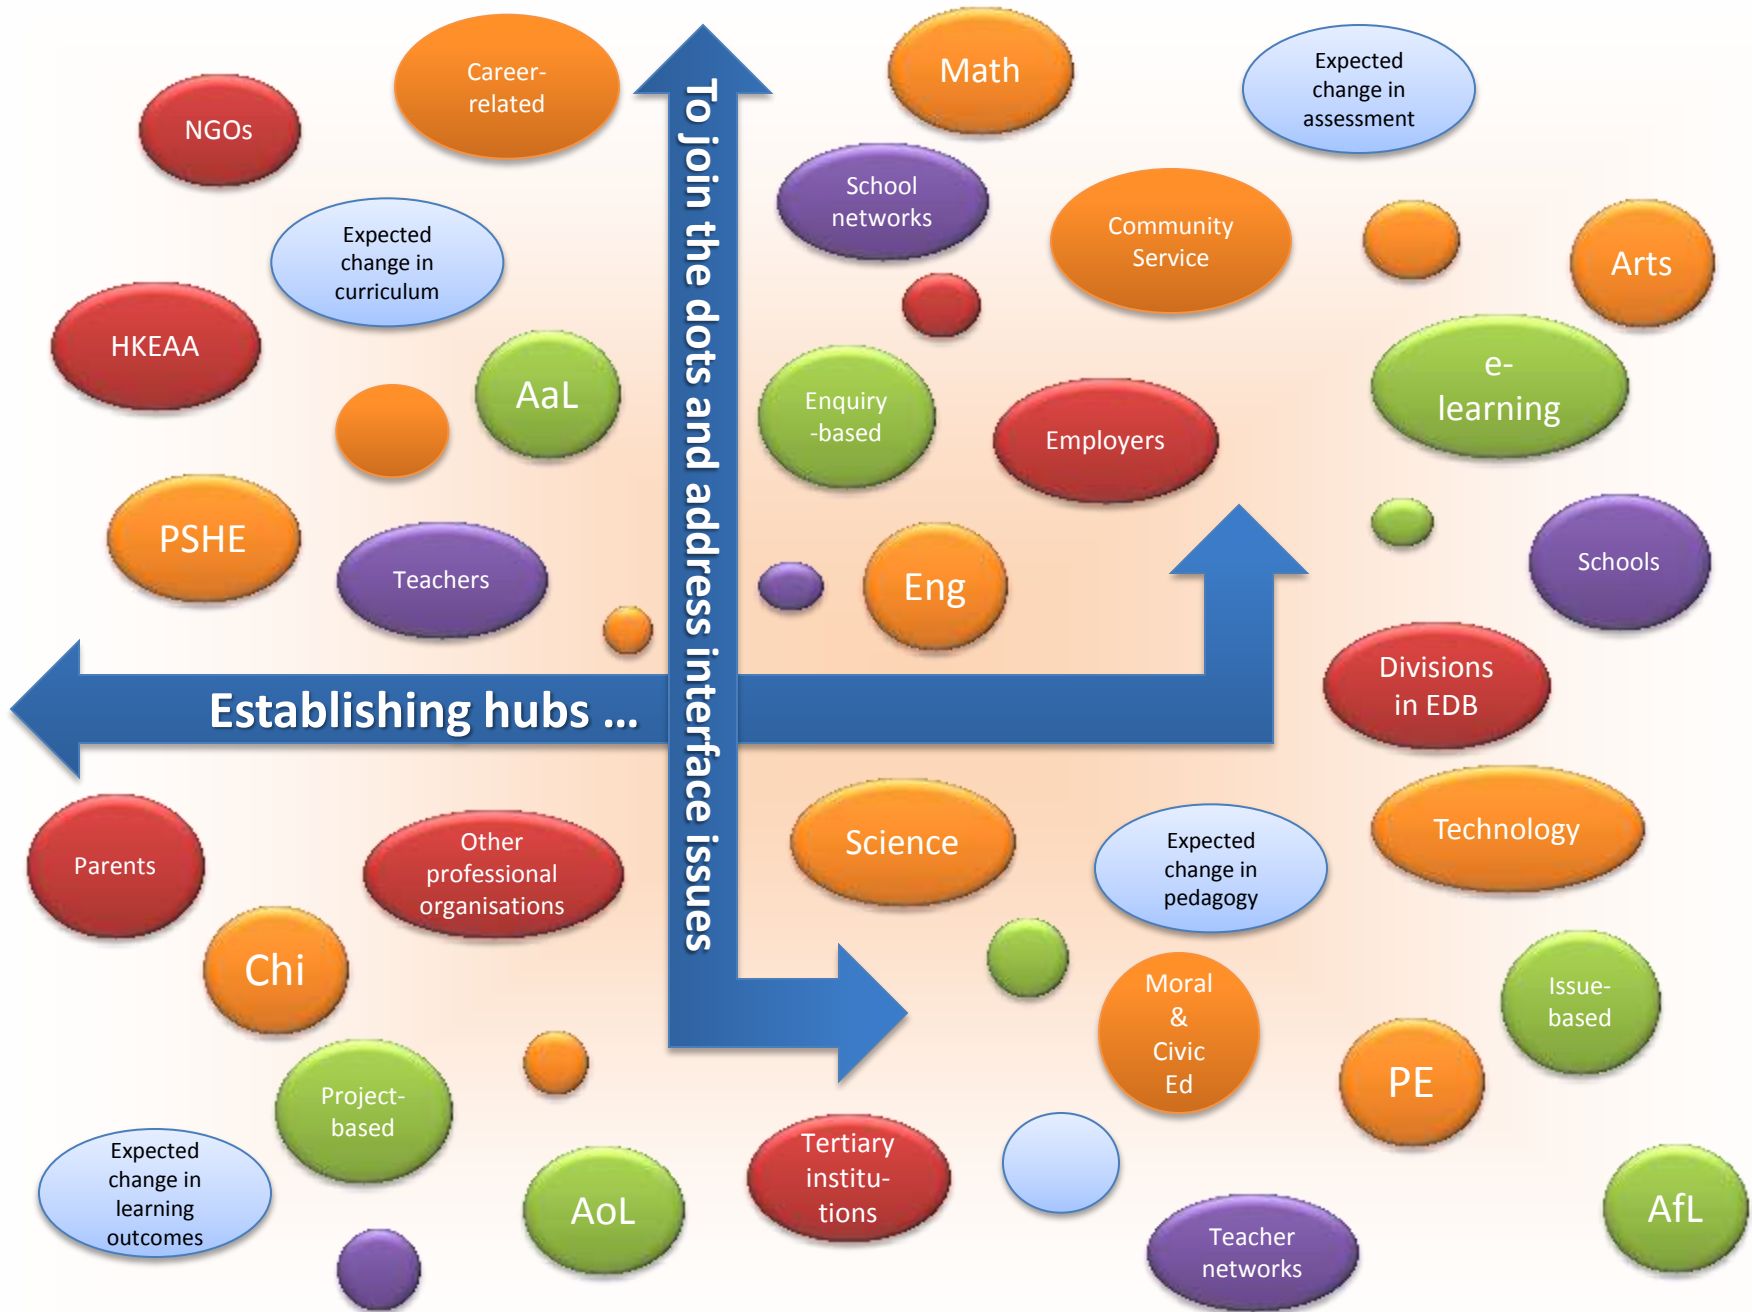

To nurture a new generation of learners who can rise with
and to the challenges in the 21st century
(from basic education reform in 2000 to NAS since 2009)

Expanding Learning Opportunities in the NAS

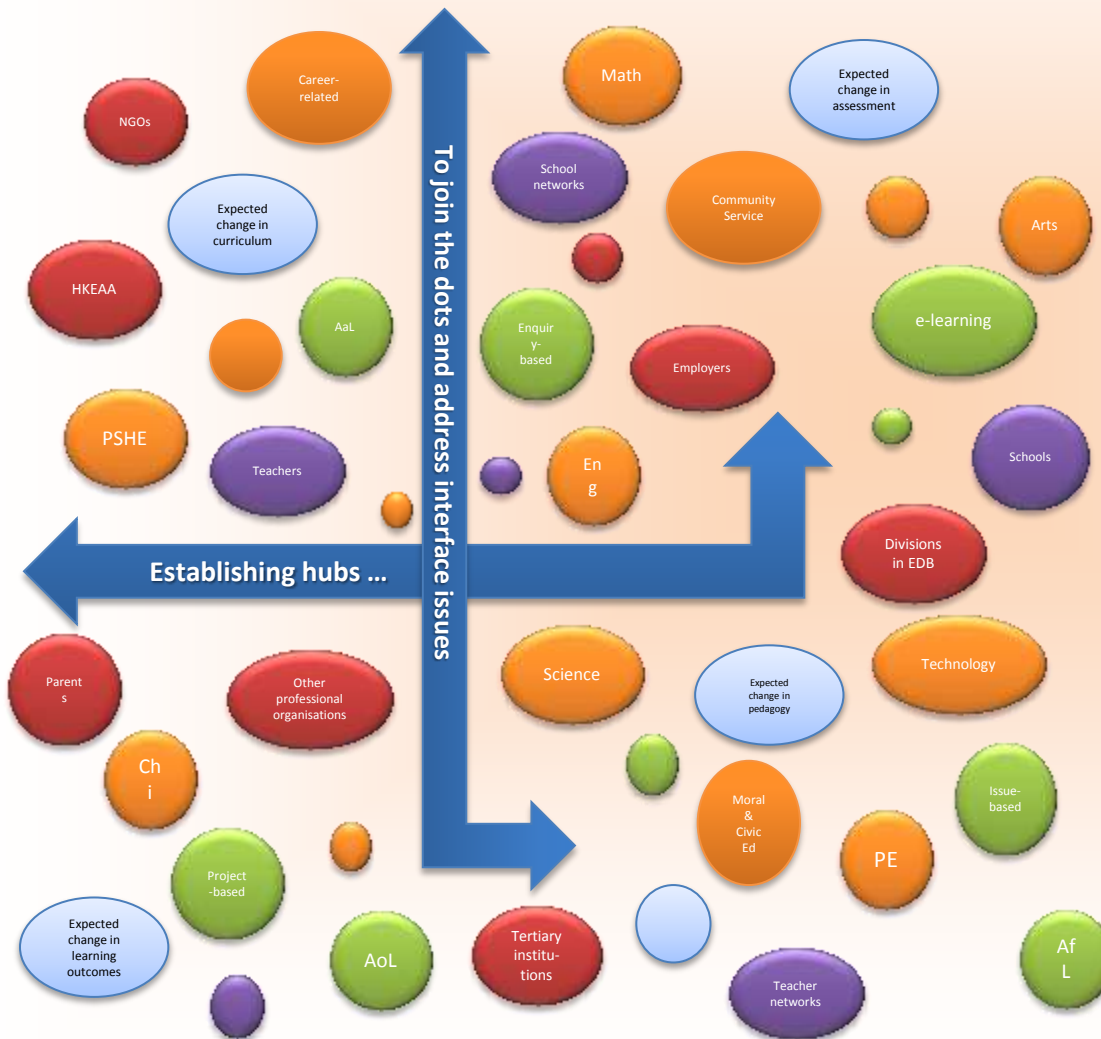

From the outset...

Establish the hubs to join the dots and address interface issues

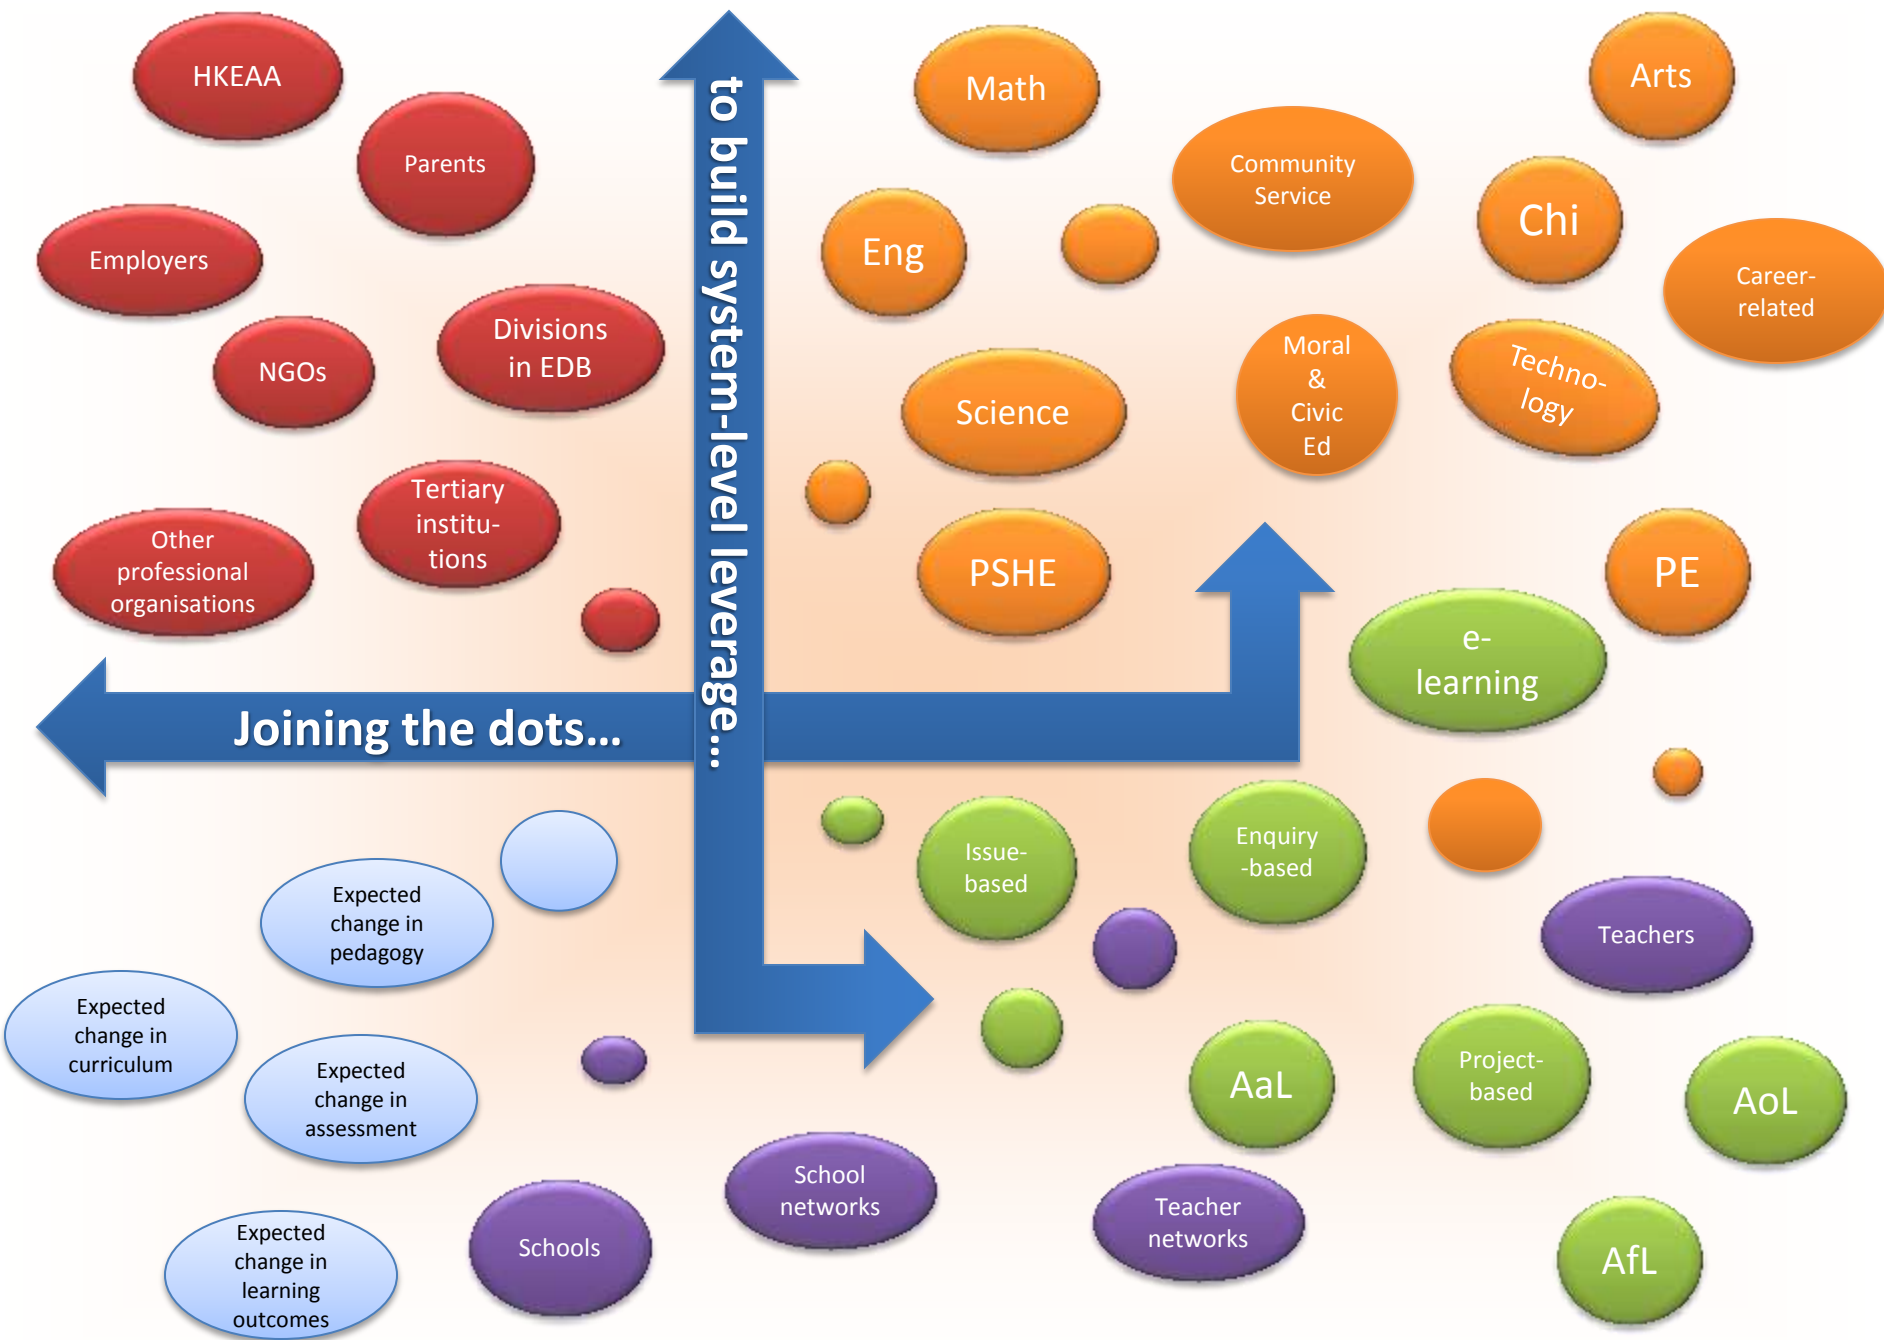

Establishing the hubs, eg:

- Liaison Group on 334
- Principals' Liaison Meeting
- Task Force on 334 Communication Strategies
- Employers' Working Group

Addressing interface issues, eg:

- Other Learning Experiences and Student Learning Profile
- Applied Learning
- HKDSE

A Multi-pronged approach to fostering collaboration and learning communities

A Multi-pronged approach to fostering collaboration and learning communities

The NAS has given opportunity to promote collaboration and learning communities, an important approach to student learning in the 21st century

Curriculum Change in NAS -

East Meets West

學而不思則罔，
思而不學則殆

To study and not think is a waste. To think and not
study is dangerous.

Confucius

The
unexamined life is not worth living.

Socrates

Broad &
balanced

Curriculum Change in NAS - East Meets West

Broad &
balanced

Curriculum Change in NAS

Pedagogical Change – blending Asian & Western pedagogy

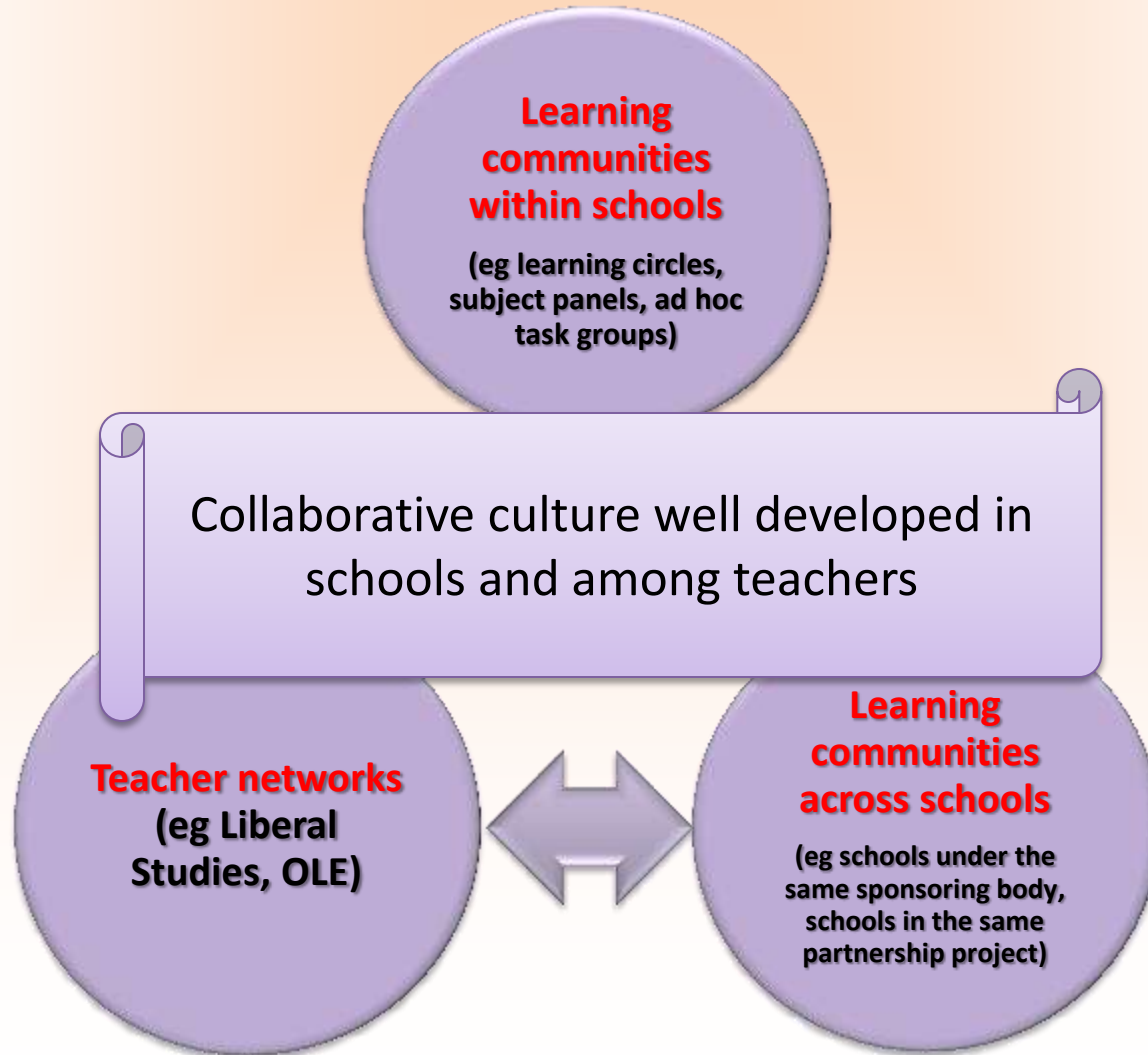

Pedagogical Change – blending Asian & Western pedagogy

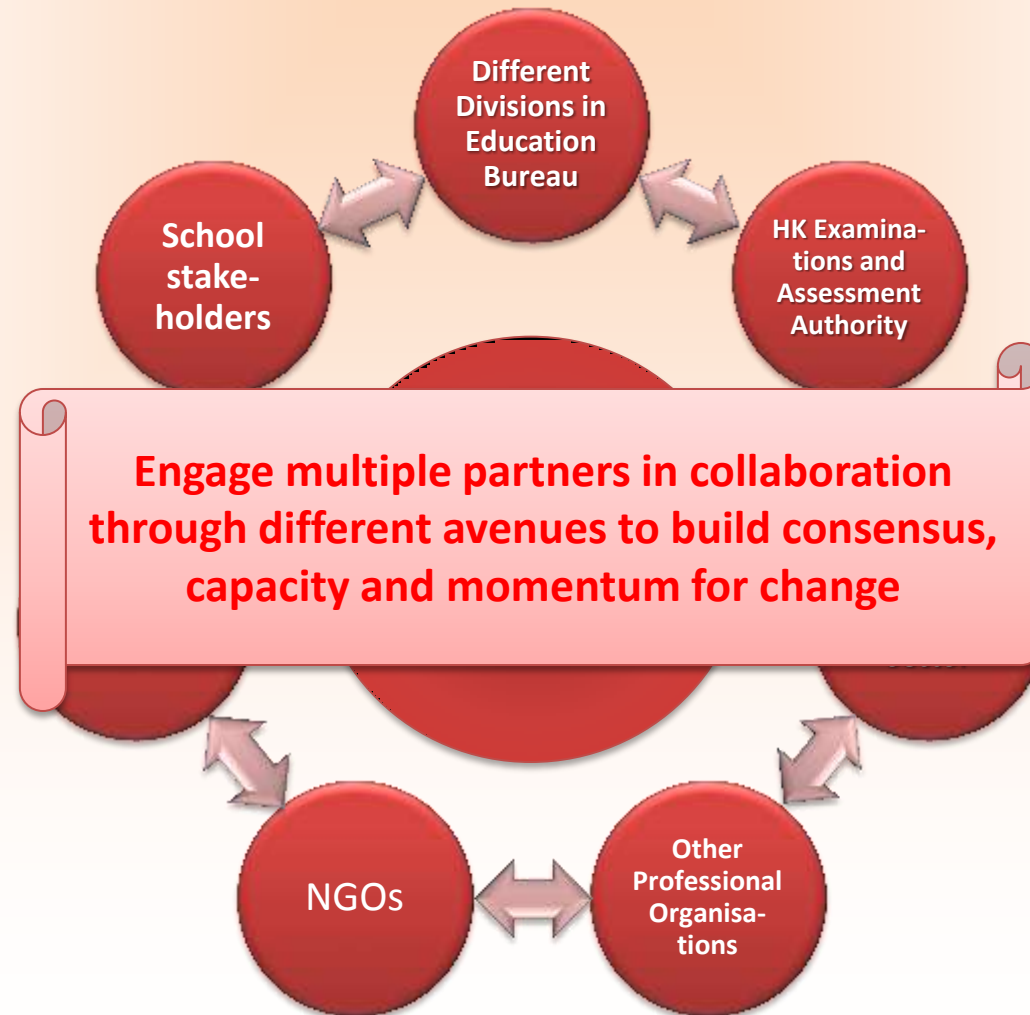

“The NAS and the HKDSE have stimulated us to think. There’re a lot of questions asking for our opinions and there’re plenty of open-ended questions requiring critical thinking in the exam.” (S6 student)

“We always have group discussion. We need to explore and discuss an issue as thoroughly as we can and challenge the viewpoints of other groups. Through peer evaluation, we learn to reflect from different perspectives.”
(S6 student)

School & Teacher Networks

Inter-organisational & inter-sectoral Collaboration

Impact of Seed Projects on NAS

Since the 2004/05 school year,

- around 60 seed projects related to the NAS curriculum
- experiences disseminated through professional development programmes
- enhancing teachers' professional knowledge
- facilitating school curriculum development
- development of a collaborative culture among teachers
- establishing learning communities within and among school networks
- building partnership between the Education Bureau and schools
- lending support to curriculum reform

The Future is Now – Learning to Live Together

Challenges Ahead

“If you can meet with Triumph and Disaster and treat those two impostors just the same...”

Rudyard Kipling

How to evaluate impact

How to see true learning from collaborative learning, such as that on the Internet

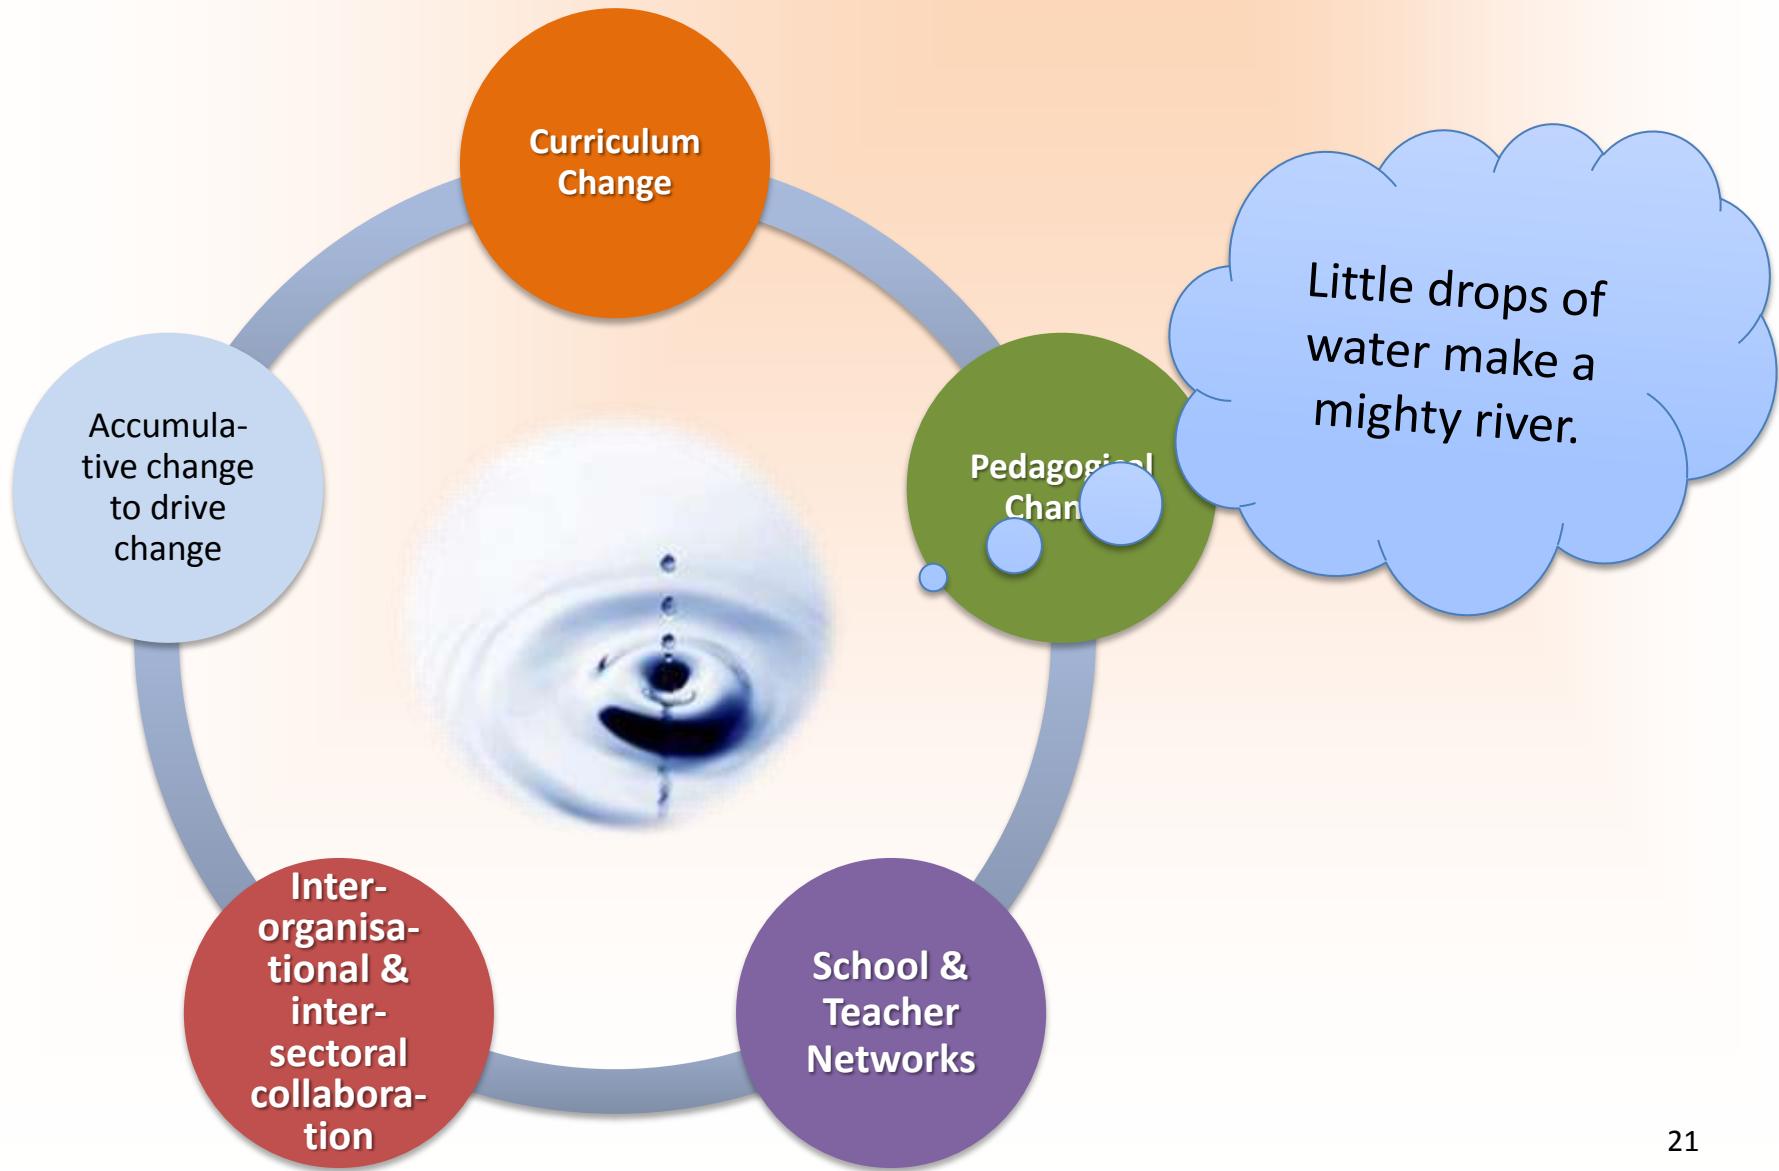

How to sustain momentum of reform when we are facing a population decline, new competitions and conflicts in society

Collaboration is the order of the day

It is of paramount importance that collaboration exists within and beyond our schools.

Fostering collaboration and learning communities

Fostering collaboration and learning communities

