

Regional Planning Workshop Expanding Flexible Learning Strategies for OOSC in ASEAN

Ichiro Miyazawa, UNESCO Bangkok

Main Points

- 1. OOSC in ASEAN and its Cost
- 2. UNESCO regional project

Countries with the highest out-of-school population in the Asia-Pacific

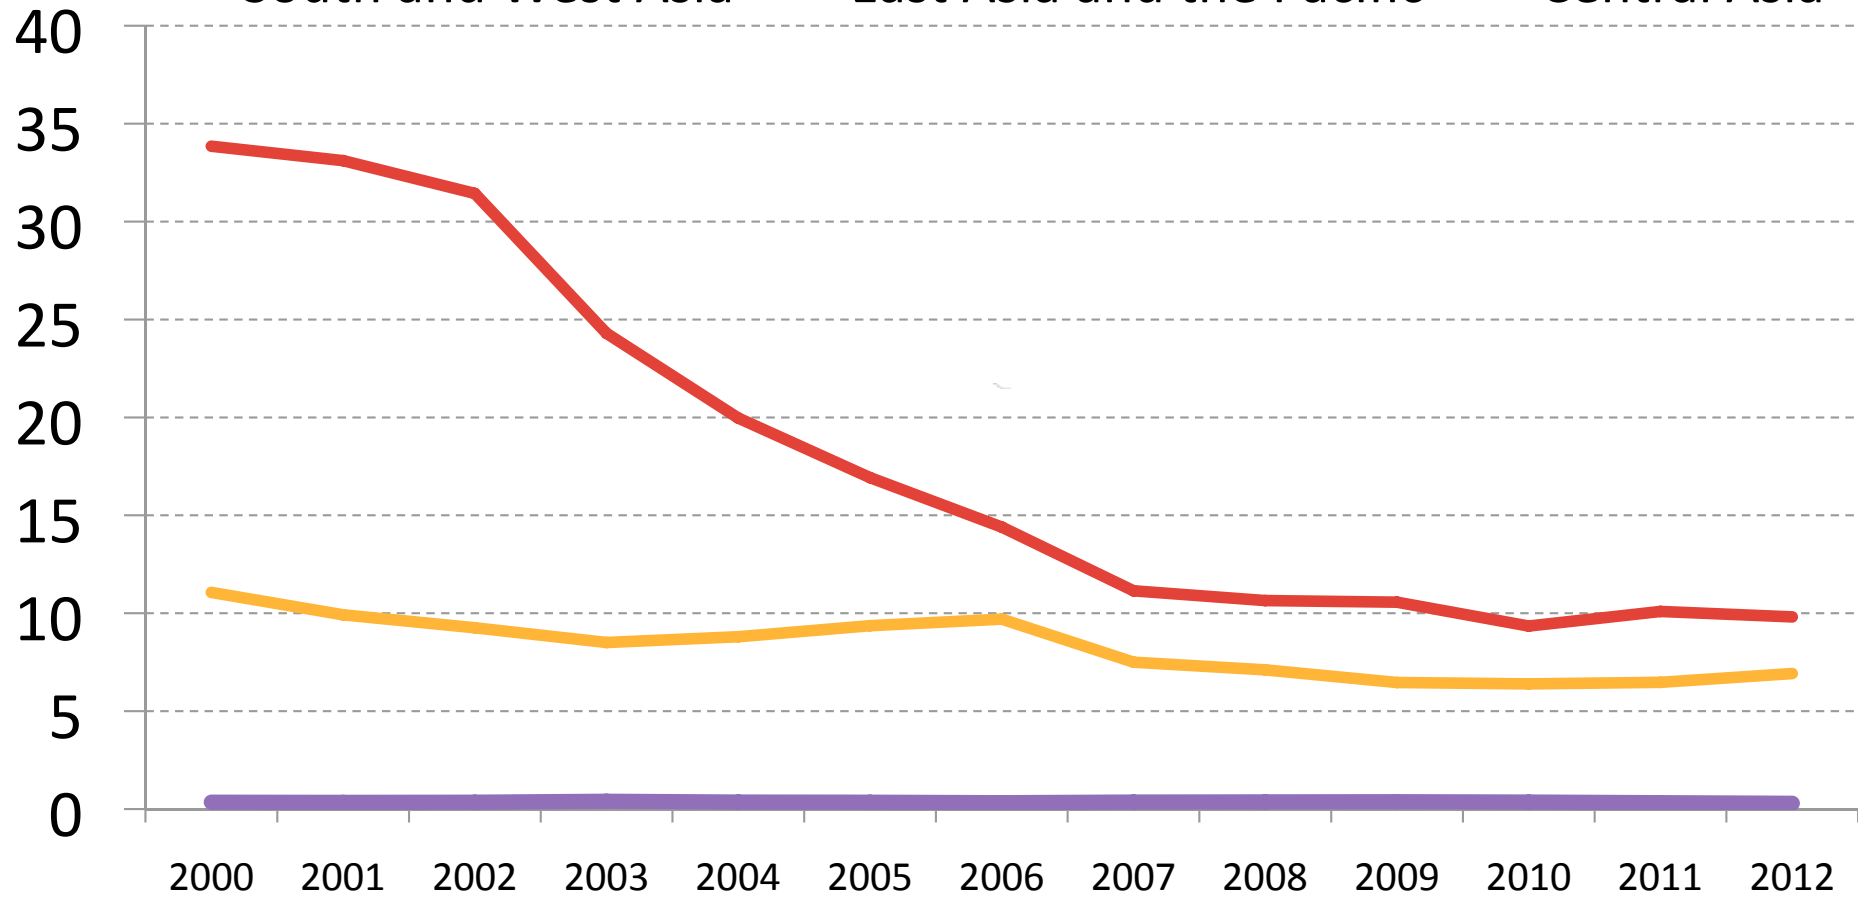

Source: UNESCO (2014) EFA Global Monitoring Report 2013/14: Teaching and Learning: Achieving quality for all, p 54 and UNESCO Institute for Statistics (UIS)

Number of Out of School Children

million

— South and West Asia — East Asia and the Pacific — Central Asia

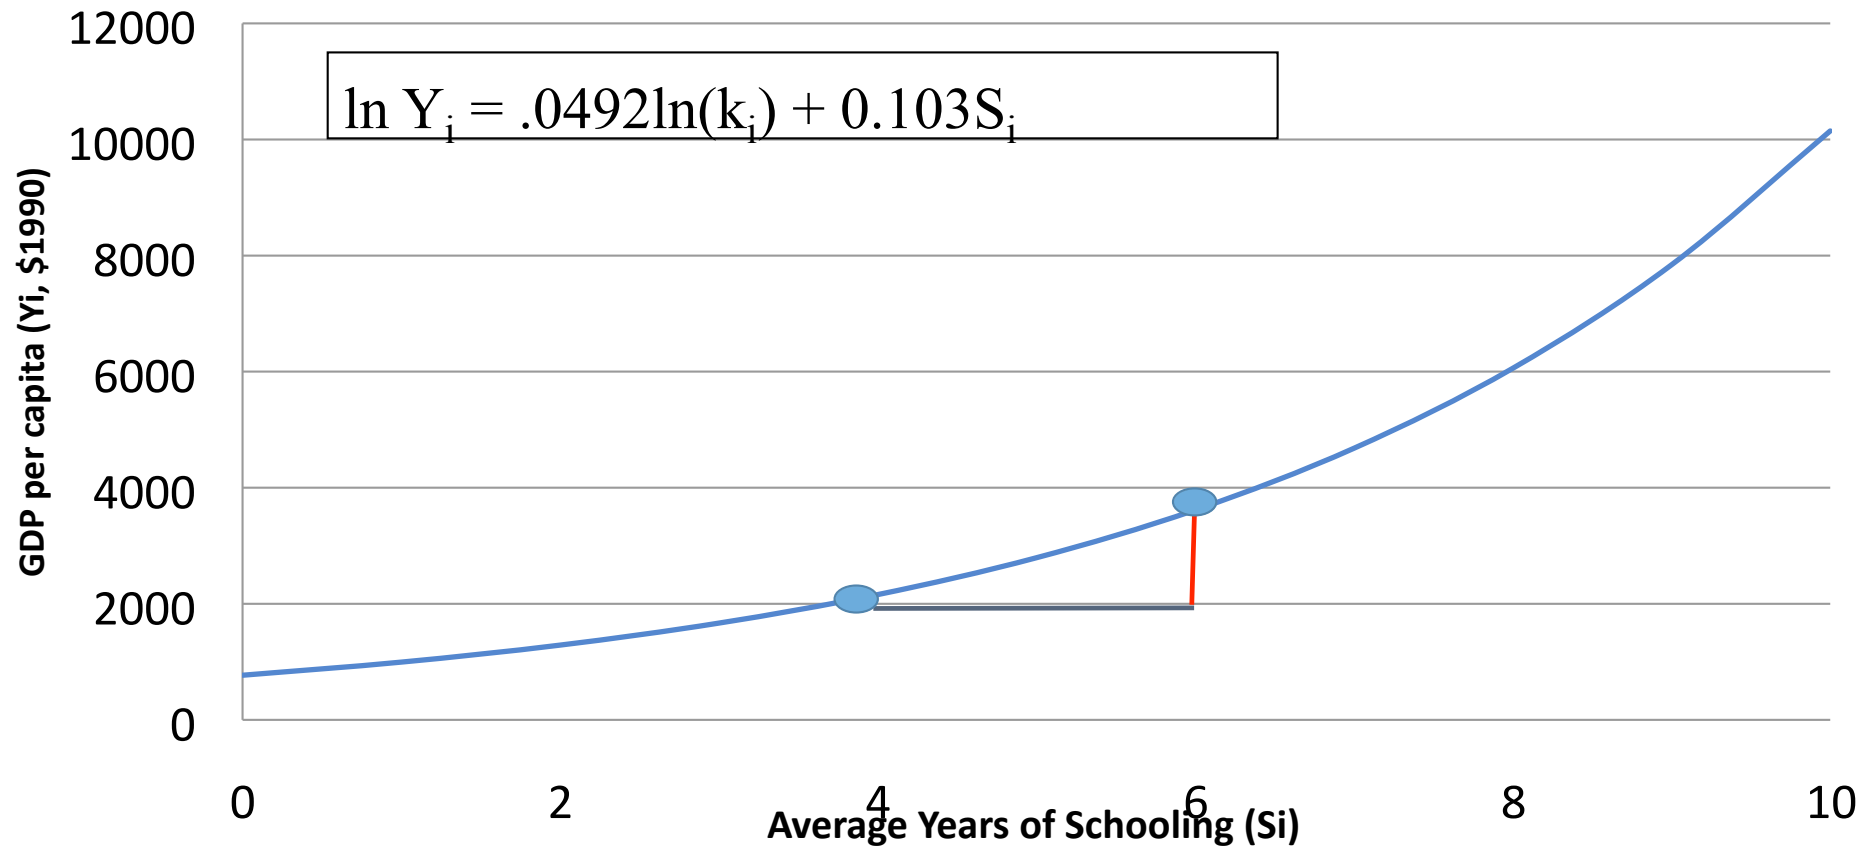

Sources: UIS Database 2014

Number of Out of School Children and Youth

	Primary School Age		Lower Secondary School Age
Cambodia	28,581	2012	229,090	2008
Indonesia	1,335,753	2012	1,673,873	2012
Lao PDR	29,694	2012	177,624	2012
Malaysia	93,743	2005	154,432	2011
Myanmar	-		-
Philippines	1,469,175	2009	348,557	2009
Thailand	243,883	2009	34,223	2011
Viet Nam	121,992	2012	1,011,776	2002
Total	3,322,821		3,629,575

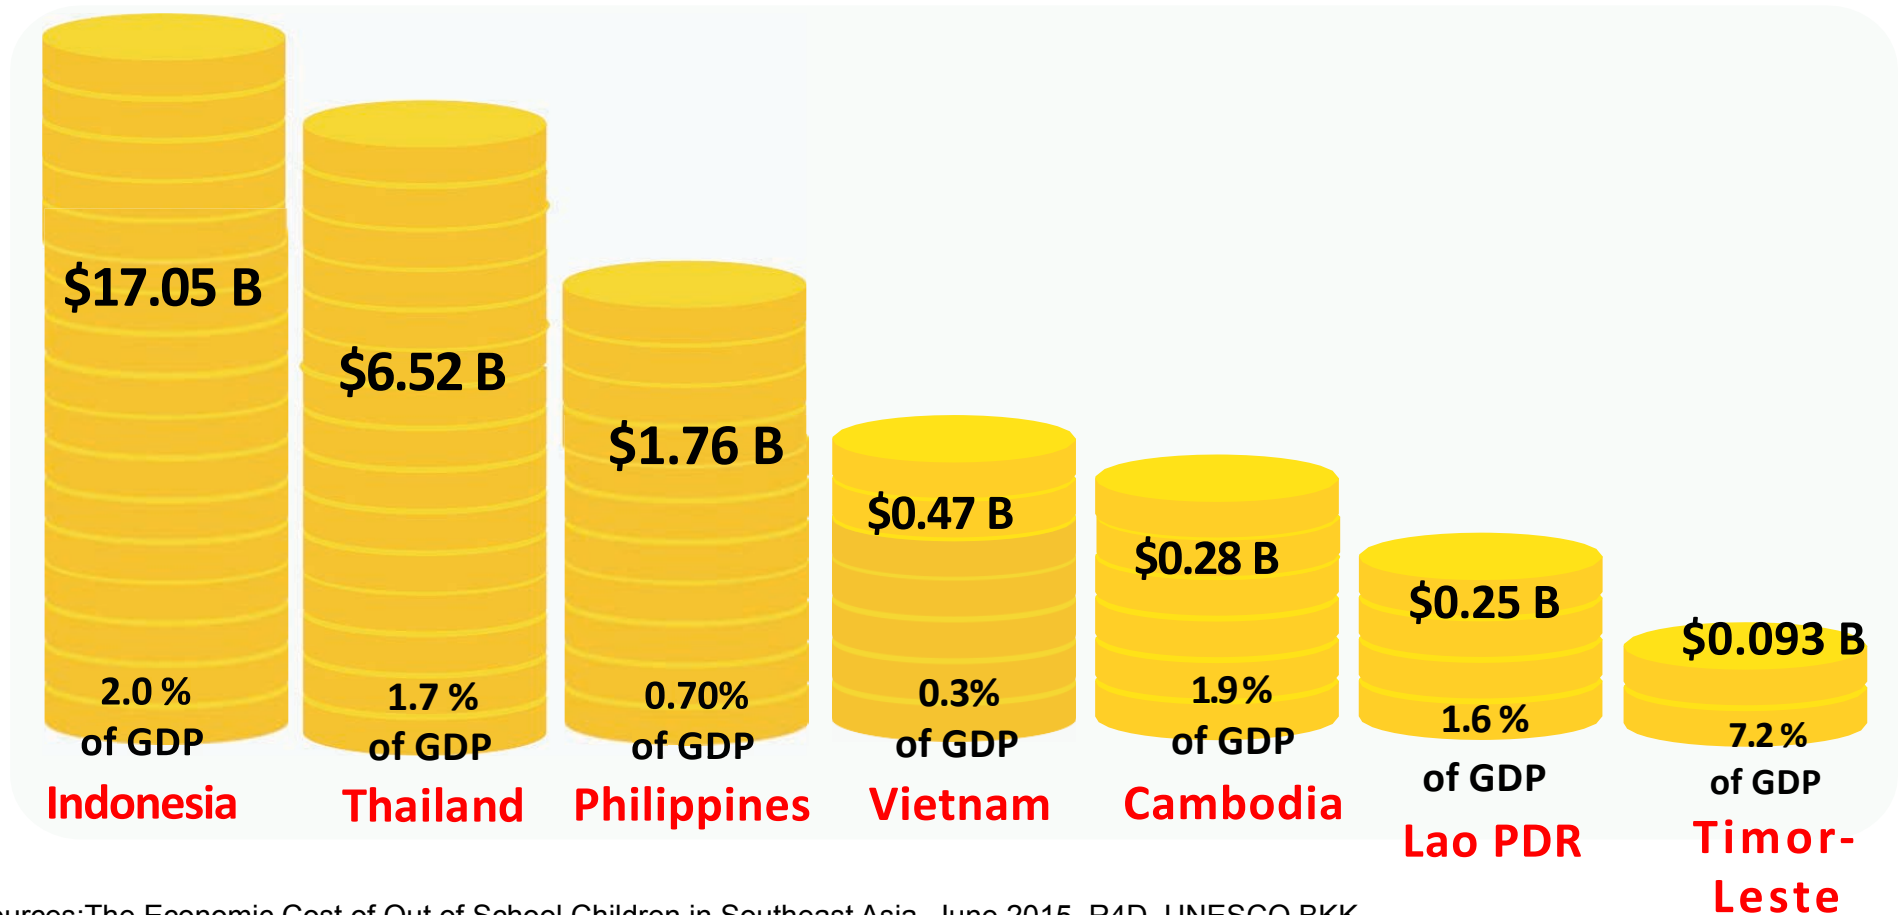

Sources: UIS Database 2013

The education-income relationship

Using data from 146 countries from 1950-2010, Barro and Lee (2010) fit the curve displayed above. In the graph above, the red line segment represents the increase in per capita GDP associated with an increase in a hypothetical population's average years of schooling from 4 to 6 years.

How much can countries gain from educating their out-of-school children?

Sources: The Economic Cost of Out of School Children in Southeast Asia, June 2015 R4D, UNESCO BKK

Strengthening Education System for Out of School Children

2. Regional Policy Advocacy

2-1 Regional Declaration

3. Regional Capacity Development

3-1 Regional Networking

- Regional Network on OOSC established
- Daily/Weekly News flash
- Platform SNS/Blog
- Matching partners

3-2 Regional Summits on OOSC

3-3 Create Educational Leaders

MOOC ?

coursera

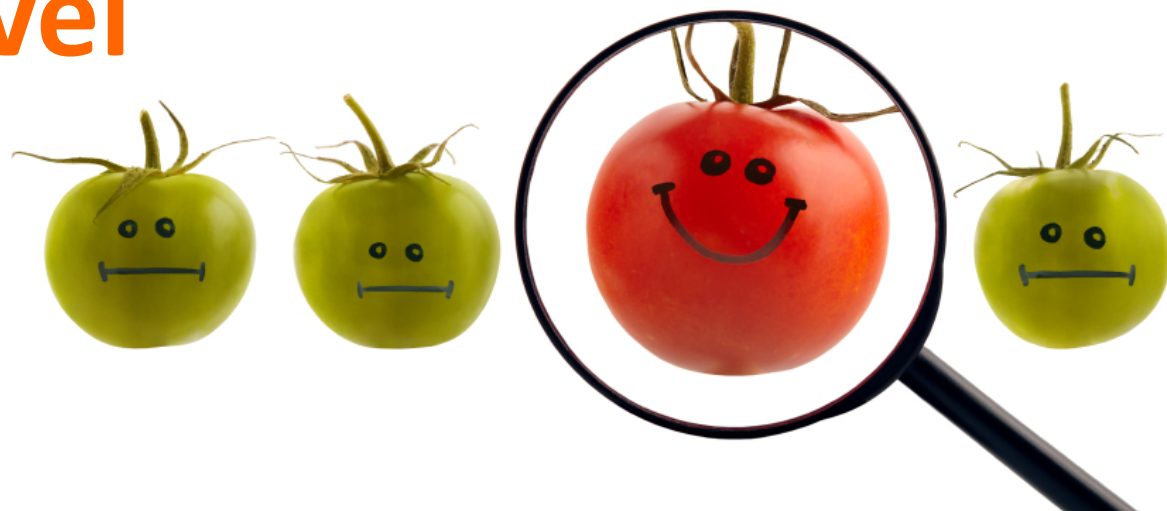

3-4 Enhancing M&E Systems

4. Flexible Learning Strategies

4-1 Action Plan to Improve/Expand current FLS programmes

4-2 Capacity Development at the national level

Ichiro Miyazawa

Program Specialist
UNESCO Bangkok

i.miyazawa@unesco.org