

we're in! here's why.

CWS programming has a special emphasis on nutrition for children in their first 1,000 days of life, and for nursing mothers. Our Therapeutic Feeding Centers in Indonesia provide life-saving nourishment to children in danger of irrevocable harm because they don't have the proper nutrition they need to survive, and thrive.

We help communities reduce their risk to drought disasters while ensuring a stable food supply. We're pioneering greenhouse farming techniques that help rural Kenyans feed their families. And in the U.S., more than 1,600 CROP Hunger Walks promote awareness and help to keep shelves stocked at more than 2,200 food pantries.

Across Latin America, CWS works with vulnerable communities to ensure they have access to diverse, nutritious food. We help minority communities who have been forced to live outside their traditional lands to learn innovative farming techniques that ensure they can raise the plants and animals needed to grow healthy.

Haiti's rural northwest is home to a key CWS investment in co-operative farming. Small-holder farmers join together to realize the economies of scale necessary to feed their own communities and support growing farm businesses, sustainably.

CWS works with small-holder farmers and kitchen garden growers to use any byproducts from food cultivation and preparation wherever possible. We help family farmers in Vietnam use banana leaves and scraps to foster plant growth, and families from Honduras to Kenya better support their own growing businesses.
