Report on the Publication and Distribution Plan 2008-2009

1. In order to obtain comprehensive information on the publications that UNESCO produces, 179 EX/Decision 31 requested that a Publication and Distribution Plan with a preliminary list of planned publications be submitted for each biennium. The CCPI therefore began acting as a publications board to put together the first plan, which covered the period 2008-2009. The present document consists of an analysis of this plan and of the publications produced during the biennium 2008-2009.

2. For the first time information is available for all planned titles, such as the link to programme priorities; the responsible sector, bureau or field office; target audiences; language versions; medium type; distribution type; number of pages; print-run; budgetary sources; and printing and overall costs. The plan has been updated during the biennium as subsequent changes have taken place.

3. On the whole, the experience has been positive. Putting together a publications plan has resulted in a collective deliberation at sector level, staff has felt involved in the publishing process and advance planning has become possible. However, the amount of information requested from programme staff, waiting for ISBN attribution, new author contract procedures all stretched existing resources and created some tension. BPI is in the process of developing an Information Materials Management Tool, which will facilitate data entry and retrieval and reduce bottlenecks.

4. Current priorities include the definition of publishing criteria and the coordination of communication efforts at sector level as part of an overall UNESCO communication strategy. BPI will continue its training programme, already begun in 2009 with a pilot course on rights issues for key staff members. Proper reflection upon target audiences needs to be carried out, and efficient methods and tools developed for impact assessment.

5. Further improvements should be made so that publication projects are not just approved, without proper consideration, by their mere inclusion in the plan, but are instead given appropriate approval based on quality and relevance to programme strategies. BPI strongly recommends the setting up of editorial boards in each sector for this purpose, and this is in progress, with an editorial board already in place in the education sector. The CCPI is currently working to bring together the Publication and Distribution Plan 2010-2011.

6. Analysis of UNESCO publishing practices during 2008-2009, based on tables below. It should be noted that as this was the first time that such a plan has been put into place and proper resources were still being identified, guidelines developed and staff trained, the quality of information produced from the plan is flawed. Colleagues were unable to fully update the plan for complete reporting.

a. What is being published and who is publishing?

7. According to the information shown in Table 1, provided by the officers responsible for publication projects, UNESCO produced 540 publications during the 2008-2009 biennium (out of a proposed 690 projects). The types of publications most often produced were monographs (31.3%), works for the general public (19%), guidelines, manuals and toolkits (11.6%), and technical reports and working papers (10.3%). As for periodicals, journals and reviews represented 3.7% of the total number of UNESCO publications, whereas newsletters added up to 8.5%.

8. Of the 540 publications produced during 2008 and 2009, 45.2% were produced at Headquarters, whereas 12.1% were published by UNESCO Institutes and 42.7% by Field Offices worldwide. This means that 54.8% of UNESCO publications were produced outside Headquarters. This information is presented in Table 2.

9. The Education Programme (MPI) published 40% of the 540 publications; the Natural Sciences Programme (MPII) published 15.7%; the Social Sciences Programme (MPIII) 11.1%; the Culture Programme (MPIV) 11.2%; and the Communication and Information Programme (MPV) 13.3%.

10. IIEP issued the highest number of titles for an institute (22), 4% of the total 540. All programmes considered, the Brasilia Field Office produced 95 titles, 17.6% of total UNESCO production; the Bangkok Office published 55 titles, equivalent to 10.1%; and the Santiago and Montevideo offices issued 16 and 15 titles respectively, which add up to 5.7% of UNESCO publications.

b. For whom is UNESCO publishing?

11. Table 3 presents the number of UNESCO publications per major programme which address a specific target audience. As a single publication may target one or more audiences simultaneously, percentage totals may exceed 100%.

12. For the purpose of this report, target audiences have been divided into general audiences and programme-specific communities. The most targeted general audiences during the 2008-2009 biennium were policy makers (60.7%); educators, teachers and trainers (52.4%); decision makers, permanent delegations and national commissions (50.9%); scientists and researchers (41%); and civil society or public at large (40.5%).

13. All the programme-specific communities indicated have been regrouped in the shaded area, and add up to 253 titles (46.8%) targeting specific audiences either exclusively or together with general audiences.

c. In which languages is UNESCO publishing?

14. Table 4 presents the number of working language versions per type of publication produced during 2008 and 2009. Of a total of 540 titles, 63.3% were produced in a single language version; 29.8% had 2, 3, 4 or 5 versions; and 6.8% were published in the 6 official languages. The percentages which correspond to the number of titles per language version are not cumulative, as the same publication can be issued in different versions. As a result, UNESCO produced 69.8% of its publications in English; 33.3% in French; 26.8% in Spanish; 17.2% in Portuguese; 12.6% in Arabic; 11.1% in Russian; and 9.2% in Chinese.

15. Language versions may obviously depend not only on type of publication but also on the specific target audience. This is manifest in some cases, such as monographs, where the fact that most are produced in a single version may have to do with their specialized audiences, in terms of subject and/or geographical area. This appears to be the opposite of newsletters, which frequently address wider audiences worldwide. It should be noted however that, to a certain extent, the consistency of this information relies on the degree of accuracy with which the publication category for each title was entered into the plan.

d. Planning, production and distribution practices

16. As shown in Table 5, 540 titles were published, whereas 690 titles had been planned before 20 March 2009. The difference between these two figures is a result of two main circumstances: a) a number of titles were not produced during 2008 and 2009, either because they were cancelled or because they were postponed for the next biennium; and b) other planned titles were added after March 2009, which renders the 690 figure merely provisional and most likely smaller than the actual number of planned titles for that biennium. Notwithstanding, information is precise concerning the type of distribution planned for the published titles: 79.6% of 540 publications were planned for free distribution and 20.3% were for sale.

17. In terms of medium type production, the information provided indicates that 66.6% of publications were produced in print version only, whereas 24.4% were produced in print and digital versions and 8.8% only digitally.

18. Full information on actual print-runs is not fully available. Still, it can be said that at least 1,109,150 copies were printed during 2008 and 2009. This results in an average print run of 2,054 copies, in a situation where individual print-runs varied widely from 25 to 38,000 copies.

19. Regarding distribution, information on the number of copies distributed and number of downloads up to December 2009 is also incomplete, especially for those titles produced in 2009. The resulting figures for distribution therefore appear lower than they are in reality; and download figures given may also appear significantly lower than they should. Although the figures are somewhat misleading, whenever full information was given for print-runs and distribution it was not unusual to find that not all printed copies had been distributed. The printing and overall costs presented in Table 5 are mere estimates, as complete information on costs is not currently available. As such, totals may only represent around half of the real costs.

e. UNESCO Publishing

1. Sales and Publications Fund

20. The table below presents in US$ the total income and expenditure for UNESCO publications and periodicals between 2004-2005 and 2008-2009:

Table 2. Income and expenditure under the Publication and Auditory and Visual Material Fund

	2004-2005	2006-2007	2008-2009	Trend
Total Income	$2,332,288	$1,589,472	$1,793,884	-23%
Sales	$1,440,755	$1,140,346	$921,896	-36%
Royalties	$878,063	$434,305	$869,607	-0.9%
Other income	$13,470	$14,821	$2,382	-82.3%
Total Expenditure	$2,257,280	$1,202,640	$1,175,836	-47.9%
Reserves and fund balances	$1,055,044	$1,441,876	$2,059,924	+95%

21. The fall in overall sales can be explained by a) A globally lower demand for most categories of publications b) A lower editorial output due to the reform process and c) The effect of co-publishing agreements, which provides revenue in the form of royalties.

22. Although overall sales have decreased in the course of the previous biennia, the income from royalties has recovered stability. In terms of the weight on the total income, the importance of royalties has increased in proportion and currently represents almost half of the total income (48.4% in 2008-2009, where it represented 37.6% in 2004-2005 and 27.3% in 2006-2007). This means that UNESCO content is consistently being licensed and translated into other languages and within geographical areas not covered by regular sales channels.

23. Overall, regular channels (sales agents and on-line sales) represent around two thirds of UNESCO publications sales, whereas the UNESCO bookstore in Headquarters represents the remaining third. Impact of the bookstore increased, however, from 2006-2007 to 2008-2009: where regular channels represented 66.6% and the bookstore 33.3% of total net sales in 2006-2007, the former decreased to 61.9% as the bookstore increased its share to 38% during the 2008-2009 biennium.

2. Licensing and co-publishing agreements signed

24. UNESCO Publishing signed 29 co-publishing agreements and 27 licensing agreements between 2008 and 2009, in order to make available some of the Organization's publications. Agreements mainly concerned co-publications and translations into English, French, Spanish, Arabic, Russian and Chinese. Other languages for which agreements were signed include Portuguese, Basque, Turkish, Vietnamese, Croatian, Estonian, Korean and Serbian.

25. These co-publishing agreements were signed with some of the leading publishers worldwide, both in terms of the prestige and quality of their catalogues and of their outreach and distribution in many regions often beyond their home markets. Among these, two contracts were signed with Oxford University Press (one for the EFA Global Monitoring Report 2009), two with Cambridge University Press, five with Taylor & Francis Books, and seven with Yilin Press from China. Most notably, the agreement signed with HarperCollins for the co-publication of The World's Heritage: A Complete Guide to the Most Extraordinary Places will enable this publication to appear in 15 different languages with an approximate print run of 100,000 copies.

26. Licensing agreements were signed with several commercial publishers, such as the French Actes Sud and Éditions Hatier, China Ocean Press and Brazilian Cortez Editora, as well as with institutional partners and publishers, such as the Turkish, Croatian and Korean National Commissions for UNESCO, the Vietnam Federation of UNESCO Clubs, the UNESCO Etxea Centro, the United Nations Environment Programme-World Conservation Monitoring Centre, the Institute for Peace Studies and the Spanish Ministry of Culture.

3. Permissions

27. During the 2008-2009 biennium 124 permissions were granted to use or translate UNESCO contents in 22 countries: United Kingdom, France, Germany, Spain, Portugal, Denmark, the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy, Turkey, Mali, Australia, Japan, Korea, the Philippines, Indonesia, Cambodia, Bangladesh, Canada, the United States, Jamaica and Argentina. Permissions were generally given for publication of content in scientific and school books produced by commercial publishers, on official government websites, on public and private institutional websites, and as part of other publications, exhibits and audio adaptations.

4. Book fairs and events

28. Between 2008 and 2009 UNESCO Publishing participated in more than 30 book fairs and events worldwide, either represented by its own staff, by some of its authors, by UNESCO field offices' staff or by its main distributors in a specific region. Major international professional and general public book fairs were attended in search of new co-publishing and licensing agreements, namely Beijing, Frankfurt, London, Cairo, Bologna, Geneva, New Delhi, Havana, Santo Domingo, Paris and Madrid.

29. Most international events attended by UNESCO Publishing concerned the Organization's specific major programmes and themes, and were a good opportunity to present its publications. Among these were the World Conference on Development of Cities in Porto Alegre, the International Conference on Education in Geneva, the Salon européen de l'éducation in Paris, the African Launch of the International Year of Planet Earth in Arusha and the Hay Festival Greenprint Forum in Wales. UNESCO also showcased its publications at the first UN Book Days event held in New York in 2008.

5. Citations of UNESCO publications in the press

30. More than 1,000 mentions and citations of UNESCO publications appeared in the press and on specialized websites during 2008 and 2009. Major UNESCO publication themes picked on by the media included the environment (water, climate change), migration, cultural heritage and diversity, ethics and human rights, knowledge and governance.
