

Lifelong learning is a process that begins at birth and carries on through all stages of life

A POSITIVE HOME LEARNING ENVIRONMENT STIMULATES BRAIN DEVELOPMENT FROM THE TIME WE'RE BORN

This illustration shows a family in a home setting. On the left, a woman is holding a baby while a young boy stands nearby. On the right, an older man with a beard is sitting at a table, reading a book to a young girl. Another child is sitting at the table with him, also looking at the book.

WE LEARN A LOT FROM OUR TEACHERS, BUT WE ALSO LEARN FROM OUR PEERS, OUR FAMILIES, OUR COMMUNITIES AND OUR EXPERIENCES

This illustration is divided into four scenes. Top left: A woman in a green shirt is teaching a group of children in a classroom with a chalkboard. Top right: A woman in a green shirt and hat is kneeling in a field, showing a nest to a young boy in a green shirt. Middle: A group of people are gathered around a laptop computer, looking at the screen. Bottom right: A family is visiting a museum, looking at various exhibits in glass cases.

DEVELOPING SKILLS FOR DECENT WORK CAN HAPPEN OUTSIDE OF THE CLASSROOM

This illustration shows three different work environments. On the left, two mechanics in green uniforms are working on a car. In the middle, a scientist in a white lab coat is using a microscope in a laboratory. On the right, a man is driving a car, and another man is pointing at something on the dashboard.

ADULT EDUCATION PROGRAMMES TEACH NEW KNOWLEDGE AND VITAL SKILLS AND HELP PEOPLE ENGAGE IN THEIR COMMUNITY

This illustration shows two community-based learning activities. On the left, a group of people are sitting on the ground under a tree, participating in a voting process with a sign that says 'VOTING' and a ballot box. On the right, a man is reading a newspaper in an 'ADULT LITERACY PROGRAM' setting, with other people looking on.

GENDER SENSITIVITY

This illustration shows three scenes related to social and environmental awareness. On the left, a man in a white shirt is presenting a 'GENDER SENSITIVITY' sign to a group of people. In the middle, two women in blue uniforms are working at a factory assembly line. On the right, an older man is standing next to a green recycling bin, holding a piece of wood.

LIFELONG LEARNING CAN HELP CHANGE ATTITUDES AND BEHAVIOR SO WE CAN ALL LIVE AND WORK MORE SUSTAINABLY TOGETHER

IN ORDER TO CREATE A SUSTAINABLE FUTURE FOR ALL, WE NEED OPPORTUNITIES TO IMPROVE OUR KNOWLEDGE, LEARN NEW SKILLS AND DEEPEN OUR UNDERSTANDING THROUGHOUT OUR LIVES
