- This online collaborative platform is dedicated to enhancing information and knowledge sharing among the UNESCO Associated Schools around the world that aimed to encourage interactive networking and participation of ASPnet teachers, students and experts by exchanging about school-based initiatives and learning from their experiences.
- While the Brazilian ASPnet is dynamic and features many innovative projects and practices, there is some concern about the large number of private schools in the membership as well as about the fact that the ASPnet national Coordinator does not seem to operate in a clear institutional framework like in other countries, and notably under the supervision of the National Commission. The International Coordination Unit and UNESCO Brasilia Office are currently working with the Brazilian authorities to find a sustainable arrangement.
