The aim of the project is to mobilize ASPnet schools to address issues pertaining to TST and increase online and offline communication among schools from different countries and continents.
- Barbados participates since 1999 in the Sandwatch. It seeks to develop awareness of the fragile nature of the marine and coastal environment and the need to use it wisely. It is an educational process through which school students and community members learn and work together to critically evaluate the problems and conflicts facing their beach environments and to develop sustainable approaches to address these issues. Sandwatch started in the Caribbean in 1999 as an initiative of UNESCO, through the platform for Environment and Development in Coastal Regions and Small Islands and the ASP Network. Through the United Nations Decade of Education for Sustainable Development (2005-2014), Sandwatch provides a practical 'hands-on' approach to integrating the values inherent in sustainable development into all aspects of learning, thereby empowering citizens to act for positive environmental and social change. It also contributes to the further implementation of the Programme of Action for the Sustainable Development of Small Island Developing States.
- Barbados participates since 1994 in the Caribbean Sea Project. Since its launch in 1994, the flagship Caribbean Sea Project has been mobilizing schools in the Caribbean on themes of environmental awareness and intercultural learning. The project intends to heighten young people's effective responses to the marine environment as a pre-requisite for their positive action and to enable them to learn about the rich cultural diversity of the Caribbean region. This project involves 17 countries and has led to the creation of The Sandwatch Project, whereby ASPnet schools play an active role in helping to reduce the pollution of the Caribbean Sea by conducting research, monitoring and protecting coastal zones, beaches, flora and fauna.
