

Training Workshop for the Preparation of Mongolia's Quadrennial Periodic Report on the UNESCO 2005 Convention for the Protection and Promotion of the Diversity of Cultural Expressions

PROGRAMME

10-12 September 2019, Ulaanbaatar, Mongolia Venue: Government Building II

BACKGROUND NOTE

The 2005 Convention on the Protection and Promotion of the Diversity of Cultural Expressions, ratified by Mongolia in 2007, recognizes the sovereign right of States to formulate and implement policies and measures that support the emergence of diverse and dynamic cultural and creative sectors. It also ensures that policies and measures are designed and implemented through informed, participatory and transparent processes. To achieve this, Mongolia, as a signatory of this Convention, is to collect and share information and data, and identify achievements and challenges on policies and measures that can protect and promote the diversity of cultural expressions. This reporting process referred to as quadrennial periodic reporting (QPR) goes well beyond a technical exercise; it is designed to support, through multi-stakeholder dialogues between government and civil society, innovative, forward-looking and evidence-based cultural policymaking. Mongolia has so far submitted its QPR in 2012 and 2016.

Parties, particularly from developing countries, have expressed a number of challenges in preparing their QPR, such as lack of relevant data and information required for evidence-based and transparent policy-making; limited capacity to assess and monitor the impact of policies and measures for the diversity of cultural expressions; as well as fragile networking between governments and civil society.

To respond to these challenges, UNESCO has launched the project "Reshaping cultural policies for the promotion of fundamental freedoms and the diversity of cultural expressions" (2018-2021) with the financial support from the Swedish International Development Cooperation Agency (Sida). It concerns 16 priority countries, including Mongolia. The project supports a series of capacity-building activities in order to strengthen institutional and professional capacities of governmental and civil society actors to monitor and report on policies and measures taken to protect and promote the diversity of cultural expressions as stipulated by the Convention. UNESCO has trained facilitators to conduct the workshop in each beneficiary country.

In Mongolia, the project was launched in May 2019 with a multi-stakeholder consultation meeting that gathered over 120 participants to examine existing and future initiatives that support contemporary cultural expressions. This was followed by the setting up of a national team of stakeholders that will be engaged in drafting the next QPR due for submission in April 2020.

This three-day workshop is addressed to the national team to provide them with methodologies and skills for data collection and analysis that will serve the drafting exercise. A public presentation and debate on the Periodic Report is scheduled for March 2020 in which findings will be openly debated before submission to UNESCO.

OBJECTIVES

- To strengthen the capacities of the national team in data collection and analysis in preparation of the QPR;
- To provide knowledge on participatory drafting processes on the content of the QPR;
- To assist the national team in gathering relevant data and statistical indicators useful for measuring the impact and effectiveness of policies and measures to promote the diversity of cultural expressions in the thematic monitoring fields.

EXPECTED RESULTS

- Participants are familiarized with the overarching purposes of the periodic reporting process for the 2005 Convention as a means of policy review and monitoring;
- Participants understand the participative drafting methodologies necessary for the QPR;
- Participants produce a concrete action plan on the preparation of the QPR for the following months (submission to UNESCO due in April 2020).

PARTICIPANTS

Approximately 20 people who compose the national team, from the following categories:

- Government representatives from different ministries concerned with the Convention (culture, education, trade, foreign affairs, social affairs, employment, finance, telecommunications, etc.)
- Representative from the national statistics office
- National Contact Point for the Convention
- Civil society organizations (CSOs) that have interests and activities in the areas of the Convention
- Media professionals
- Academia
