Held in the morning of the 1st day, and following the Opening Ceremony, Session One of the 1st GC Meeting covered the following agenda items:

21. Election of the Pro Tempore Chairperson of the 1st GC Meeting by Virtue of Age
Regarding the fact that meeting was the first among the GC meetings, and that the chairperson of the GC was needed to be elected through voting in the course of a next agenda item, the participants in the 1st GC Meeting decided to elect a pro tempore chairperson for the mentioned meeting by Virtue of Age. In so doing, and under the supervision of the Representative of the Director-General of UNESCO to the 1st GC Meeting, the participants decided to elect Mr. Mohammad Mirshokraei, as the Pro Tempore Chairperson of the 1st GC Meeting by Virtue of Age (cf. Decision 01/TICHG/GC-001/11-12, attached herewith).

22. Report by the Pro Tempore Director of the Centre

Following the election of the Pro Tempore Chairperson of the 1st GC Meeting, the Pro Tempore Director of the Centre was invited by the 1st GC Meeting to present his report on the history of the Centre and the procedure that had led to its establishment. Having adopted the report by Mr. Yadollah Parmoun, the Pro Tempore Director of the Centre, the GC decided to include it in the final report of the 1st GC Meeting, as well as the Documents Archive of the Centre (cf. Decision 02/TICHG/GC-001/11-12, attached herewith). The text of the Report by the Pro Tempore Director of the Centre has been attached herewith (cf. Annex 7).

23. Adoption of the Agenda

The provisional agenda under 14 above, that was presented by the Secretary to the 1st GC Meeting, was adopted (cf. Decision 03/TICHG/GC-001/11-12, attached herewith), and the GC Members decided to follow it in the course of the determined two-day meeting. The text of the adopted Agenda of the 1st GC Meeting is attached herewith (cf. Annex 2).

24. Adoption of the Governing Council Members' Specifications

The specifications of the individuals listed under 13 above, as people elected for membership in the GC, as well as their representatives to the 1st GC Meeting, were adopted; in addition, the presence of the Director of the Centre in the GC Meetings, as well as the Pro Tempore Director of the Centre in the 1st GC Meeting, both in the capacity of the Secretary, were adopted; as a result Mr. Yadollah Parmoun, the Pro Tempore Director of the Centre, was decided to attend the 1st GC Meeting as the Secretary (cf. Decision 04/TICHG/GC-001/11-12, attached herewith). The adopted list of the GC Members, as well as the documents authorizing them in the mentioned capacities, are attached herewith (cf. Annex 15).

25. Election of the Chairperson of the Governing Council and Shift of the Chairmanship of the 1st Meeting of the Governing Council to the Elected Chairperson

The GC Members, having considered the proposal on the candidacy of Mr. Masoud Alavian Sadr, the ICHHTO Representative to the GC, for chairmanship of the GC Meetings, unanimously decided to elect Mr. Masoud Alavian Sadr as the First Chairperson of the GC (cf. Decision 05/TICHG/GC-001/11-12, attached herewith). Following this decision, the chairmanship of the 1st GC Meeting was shifted to Mr. Masoud Alavian Sadr, and the rest of the agenda items were decided to be discussed under his chairmanship.

26. Adoption of the Name of the Centre

As asserted through the Agreement, the name "Regional Research Centre for Safeguarding Intangible Cultural Heritage in West and Central Asia", the phrase agreed upon through the mentioned Agreement, was adopted as the official name of the Centre, and its use was decided upon as identical to the provisions of the Agreement. However, regarding the need for a shorter name for the Centre, to appear in ordinary, not-binding, documents, as well as for frequent uses, the GC Members decided to adopt the phrase "Tehran ICH Centre", proposed by the ICH Section to UNESCO, as the shorter name of the Centre. Furthermore, the usage of the mentioned shorter name was decided upon to follow the directions determined in the Agreement (cf. Decision 06/TICHG/GC-001/11-12, attached herewith).

27. Adoption of the Temporary Logo of the Centre

The GC Members came to a consensus on the fact that the thematic and geographical domains specified for the Centre required widespread regional/international efforts in a sufficient time period to prepare a comprehensive logo for it. They, also, agreed to have two logos for the Centre: one in Persian, for uses on the documents and web-pages prepared in Persian, and another for the documents and web-pages in other languages, including the official languages of UNESCO.

Regarding the abovementioned, the GC Members agreed to adopt, as the temporary logo of the Centre, a combination of the shorter name of the Centre and the UNESCO Emblem, following the internationally approved standards. They, also, agreed to have the full name of the Centre to appear under the mentioned temporary logo in Persian (for the Persian logo) and in English (for the English logo).

The discussions resulted in the adoption of the following as the Temporary Logos of the Centre:

The Temporary Logo of the Centre (Persian)

The Temporary Logo of the Centre (English)

In addition, the GC Members authorized the Secretariat of the Centre to publish an invitation, at the regional and international levels, to a competition for drafting the permanent logo of the Centre. The mentioned Secretariat was required to introduce to the 2nd Ordinary Meeting of the GC for the adoption of the finalized logo, the best three candidates to be selected through consultations with specialists in the field.

Finally, the Secretariat of the Centre was requested by the GC Members to follow the procedure of signing the Agreement on the Use of the Emblem of the Convention for the Safeguarding of the Intangible Cultural Heritage with UNESCO, in such a way that the finalized logo of the Centre will consist of a combination of the UNESCO Emblem, the ICH Emblem, and the permanent Logo of the Centre, according to the related published standards.

(cf. Decision 07/TICHC/GC-001/11-12, attached herewith).

28. Election of the Director of the Centre and its Secretariat

The GC Members, having considered the proposal on the candidacy of Mr. Yadollah Parmoun, the Pro Tempore Director of the Centre, who had directed, among his other duties, the process leading to holding the 1st GC Meeting as well as the official inauguration of the Centre, unanimously decided to elect Mr. Yadollah Parmoun as the 1st Director of the Regional Research Centre for Safeguarding Intangible Cultural Heritage in West and Central Asia and the Secretariat affiliated to it (cf. Decision 08/TICHG/GC-001/11-12, attached herewith).

(cf. Decision 12/TICHG/GC-001/11-12, attached herewith).

The GC Members were also made informed of the efforts that had been made to design the structure of the mentioned website according to the websites of the already established Cat. 2 Centres (namely, Crespial, ICHCAP, CRIHAP, and IRCI), to contribute to the agreement reached in the course of the Bangkok Joint Meeting of the Asia-Pacific Category 2 Centres to establish a coordinated network of the websites of the mentioned Cat. 2 Centres.

48 The need for drafting and submitting the collection of rules and regulations of the Centre, including, among others, specific rules of procedures for the GC, the EB, and the Centre, to accompany the adopted documents was announced as an urgent need for the Centre, to the extent that an extraordinary meeting of the GC was proposed to be held in May 2013 to cover the adoption of the mentioned regulations.

49 Respect for the standard procedures of UNESCO in announcing and organizing the GC and EB Meetings, among the other such gatherings, was emphasized, as a method to bring the Centre and its activities in line with the other international organizations.

THE OPENING CEREMONY OF THE 1ST GC MEETING

In the Name of God, the Compassionate, the Merciful

Excellencies,

Ladies and Gentlemen,

Dear Scholars,

Dear Members of the Governing Council of the Regional Research Centre for Safeguarding Intangible Cultural Heritage in West and Central Asia, Under the Auspices of UNESCO

It gives me great pleasure, today, to witness a determining step taken in the field of the culture of the ancient continent of Asia, and, specifically, the West and Central Asian Region. A region that, justifiably, constituted a birth-place for human civilizations, and has adopted in itself, in the course of its ever-developing history, a great number of Intangible Cultural Heritages.

The present meeting is a gathering of scholars and experts on Intangible Cultural Heritage. You are well aware that this heritage type does not limit itself within the political and official borders of countries, and is spread over vaster geographical territories. Perhaps this type of cultural heritage can be interpreted as best reflecting the concept of "shared heritage", due to the fact that few manifestations of Intangible Cultural Heritage can be found without specific counterparts in other countries and among other nations.

In this same relation, the West and Central Asian Region is quite outstanding. Apparently, this geographical territory functions as a gathering place for a considerable number of nations, ethnicities, religions, language communities, and races, each enjoying a rich background in various domains of the Intangible Cultural Heritage: special oral traditions, specific rituals, customs and traditions, unique performing arts, original corpuses of traditional knowledge, and special traditional craftsmanship. However, a careful detailed examination of all these manifestations, interestingly, reveals a shared cultural core among them. I would like to refer to this shared cultural core as the "West and Central Asian Intangible Cultural Heritage"; I am confident that the same understanding encouraged the sides to the Agreement on the establishment of our Centre to sign it. We are aware of the existence of a number of manifestation of the Intangible Cultural Heritage that can be referred to with the phrase "West and Central Asia" as an adjective: "West and Central Asian Rituals", "West and Central Asian Architecture", "West and Central Asian Traditional Medicine", "West and Central Asian Mythology", "West and Central Asian Music", "West and Central Asian Performing Arts, and the like.

However, and in spite of the mentioned rich background, the West and Central Asian Region is urgently in need of "awareness raising" and "capacity building" to behave properly in relation to this heritage type, and to learn about the proper way of utilizing it: especially, when we speak about shared Intangible Cultural Heritage. We, like all other nations on the Region, are in need of the latest scientific and expert contributions in the field; we need to become acquainted with the Intangible Cultural Heritage on the Region; we need to learn the methods for safeguarding it; and require to know those ways of utilizing it that do not cause dangers on its existence. Questions like these abound.

Anyway, we are witnessing an opportunity in our capital provided for the states on this vast region to share their interests and concerns in this regard, and make proper decisions. The opportunity, above all, contributes to peace and friendship over the Region, encourages dialogue among the nations, and, at the same time, provides the ground for identification, documentation, research, safeguarding, revitalization, and proper utilization of Intangible Cultural Heritage, this time on the vast regional scale.

I would like to express my warmest welcomes to the scholars who have attended the present gathering, and long for a successful meeting with plenty of good results.

No doubt, the first steps are, always, the steps to get experience. I wish for this first step to be accompanied with great experiences, and to throw light on future fruitful actions.

I hope for the day, in near future, that the interactions between our Centre and the international organizations and institutions will lead to rapid expansion of its activities over larger levels on the Region, to the extent that, finally, the overall West and Central Asian Intangible Cultural Heritage domain is seen accompanied with it.

I would like to bring my speech to an end with expressing my sincere gratitude toward all those who have contributed fully and sincerely to this meeting:

- The Director General of UNESCO,
- The Intangible Cultural Heritage Section of UNESCO,
- UNESCO Tehran Cluster Office,
- Iranian National Commission for UNESCO,
- National Commissions for UNESCO over the Region, especially, those working in Tajikistan and Kazakhstan,
- The Deputy for Cultural Heritage, ICHHTO,
- The Research Institute to ICHHTO, especially the Linguistics, Anthropology, and Traditional Arts Research Centres affiliated to it,

And

- The personnel of the Regional Research Centre for Safeguarding Intangible Cultural Heritage in West and Central Asia, Under the Auspices of UNESCO (Category 2).

TO

In the Name of the Almighty God

Excellencies,
Dear Scholars,
Dear Guests,
Ladies and Gentlemen,

It is my great honor to represent the Iranian Cultural Heritage, Handicrafts and Tourism Organization (ICHHTO) in the course of the 1st Meeting of the Governing Council to the Regional Research Centre for Safeguarding Intangible Cultural Heritage in West and Central Asia, Under the Auspices of UNESCO. I would like to express my warmest welcomes over the presence of high-ranking Iranian and international figures, guests from foreign embassies in Tehran, the leading figures active in cultural and administrative affairs, the UNESCO representatives, scholars engaged in cultural heritage, especially, Intangible Cultural Heritage affairs, as well as the Members of the Governing Council to the Iranian Category 2 Centre on ICH, to the 1st Meeting of this Council.

In spite of the fact that it has attracted international attention only recently, the subject of Intangible Cultural Heritage does not present the Iranian Scholars with an unprecedented concept and methodology. For a period of years we have witnessed publications of valuable ethnographies and ethnologies by Iranian scholars. To these, one must add a number of joint research projects at the sub-regional level, in which the Iranian scholars had taken part. The experience and expertise gained in this way is outstanding. The outcomes of the mentioned background for Iran include, among others, achievement in inscribing nine ICH elements on the UNESCO lists in the course of the previous three cycles, membership in the Intergovernmental Committee of the States Members to the 2003 Convention, membership in the network of the trainers on ICH, representing the ASPAC Group in the Subsidiary Body responsible for evaluating the ICH nominations for possible inscription on the Representative List in the 2012 Cycle, and membership in the Bureau of the coming Intergovernmental Committee Session.

It has been due to this same experience and expertise that the Director-General, as well as the Intangible Cultural Heritage Section, of UNESCO were convinced to support the establishment, in Iran, of a Category 2 regional research centre under the auspices of UNESCO, specialized for West and Central Asia.

The establishment of the mentioned Category 2 Centre will define us with a starting point for a series of safeguarding activities in relation to the Intangible Cultural Heritage over the West and Central Asian Region. The mentioned activities will provide the States on the Region with a novel perspective for collaboration, dialogue and development.

On these same lines, extensive awareness-raising, capacity-building, documentation, and research endeavors are expected at the regional level. Regional expert conferences, regional festivals, shared publications, pre-planned preservation and revitalization campaigns, identification of successful/best practices over the Region, and joint safeguarding projects directed toward the elements of ICH that are in need of urgent safeguarding constitute, only, part of the activities expected of our Category 2 Centre.

Asia, the ancient, densely populated, and culturally diversified continent, constitutes a territory of great capacities in relation to Intangible Cultural Heritage. Our continent has been greatly active in this same relation; to justify this claim, it is sufficient to mention that four of the five UNESCO Category 2 Centres on ICH are located in Asia. The Iranian Category 2 Centre is the fourth among the Asian Centres, and has been agreed to follow research projects directed toward safeguarding ICH on the vast West and Central Asian Region.

The West and Central Asian Intangible Cultural Heritage, however, needs to be identified and introduced to the world. The Regional Research Centre for Safeguarding Intangible Cultural Heritage in West and Central Asia is expected to follow the following as topics for part of its activities:

- Identification of successful practices for safeguarding Intangible Cultural Heritage over the Region,
- Identification of national laws, rules and regulations for safeguarding Intangible Cultural Heritage for utilization at sub-regional and regional levels,
- Identification and safeguarding shared and endangered ICH elements over the Region,
- Effective cooperation with the other Category 2 Centres on ICH, as well as the international organizations and institutions interested in the subject,
- Planning and executing awareness-raising and capacity-building activities over the Region, with special attention directed toward the countries having recently joined the 2003 Convention,

And

- Identification of the local communities, non-governmental organizations, and expert groups and individuals involved in affairs related to safeguarding Intangible Cultural Heritage over the Region, and contributing to have them involved in the activities of the Centre.

I hope that in the course of this 1st Meeting of the Governing Council we will be able to adopt as many agenda items as is needed by the Centre to start its functions.

I, too, would like to bring this speech to an end by expressing my sincere thanks toward all the people who have been involved in organizing this meeting.

THE OPENING CEREMONY OF THE 1ST GC MEETING

Abstract

The speech by Mr. Abdolmahdi Mostakin was constituted by an introduction to the nature of the Intangible Cultural Heritage and its role in institutionalizing peace, solidarity and development. References to the shared West and Central Asian ICH and the need for harmonizing efforts at the regional level to safeguard this heritage followed the abovementioned introduction. Selections of the works by the great Iranian literary figures were presented to the audience to support the idea that the concept Intangible Cultural Heritage and its functions had been known to the people over the Region for Centuries.

Mr. Mostakin, then, reminded the audience of the role of UNESCO Category 2 Centres in helping the mother international organization to follow its duties and functions. He made special reference to the urgent need over the Region for awareness-raising and capacity-building, and expressed hope that the Category 2 Centre in Iran could succeed in accomplishing these objectives over the vast West and Central Asian Region. He, also, emphasized the potentiality on the part of the mentioned Centre to consolidate dialogue among the communities and states over the region through encouraging regional cooperation to safeguard shared ICH.

Mr. Mostakin brought his speech to its end with expressing thanks toward the organizers of the Meeting.

THE OPENING CEREMONY OF THE 1ST GC MEETING
(TEHRAN, 6 NOVEMBER 2012)

Ladies and Gentlemen,

It is a pleasure to represent the Director-General of UNESCO, Ms Irina Bokova, and to join you for the first meeting of the Governing Council of the Regional Research Centre for the Safeguarding of Intangible Cultural Heritage in West and Central Asia.

I wish to thank the Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran for its engagement in the safeguarding of cultural heritage.

This is true in World Heritage, where the Islamic Republic of Iran has 15 sites inscribed on the World Heritage List -- from the from the the Zigorat of Choghazanbil to the Jeme Mosque of Isfahan.

This is also the case for intangible cultural heritage, where the Islamic Republic of Iran has currently two items on the List of Intangible Cultural Heritage in Need of Urgent Safeguarding – the Naqqāli story-telling and the skills of building and sailing Iranian Lenj boats – and seven elements included on the Representative List of Intangible Cultural Heritage – including the Pahlevani and Zoorkhanei rituals, Radif of Iranian music and (together with six other countries of the region) Novruz.

These are precious for the Iranian people, and they part of the wider heritage of humanity.

This engagement reflects values that have deep roots in Iranian society.

The inauguration of the Tehran Centre and its first Governing Council meeting are timely, because they occur a few weeks before the seventh session of the Intergovernmental Committee for the Safeguarding of the Intangible Heritage in early December in Paris.

The Islamic Republic of Iran has just completed a two-year term as a member of that Committee, and it served in 2012 on the Subsidiary Body evaluating nominations to the Representative List.

The Director-General and the Secretary of the Convention, Ms Cécile Duvelle, would like to thank you for that effective contribution to the implementation of the Convention.

Intangible cultural heritage is our bridge from the past to the future.

It is the way we understand the world and the means by which we shape it. Intangible cultural heritage is the precious possession of communities, groups and individuals – only they can safeguard it and pass it on to generations to come.

Our role, as international organizations and Governments, is to support these efforts in every way we can.

This is the goal of the 2003 Convention for the Safeguarding of the Intangible Cultural Heritage.

The Convention provides an opportunity to discover living cultural expressions from across the world.

It is also a tool for social cohesion and a way to safeguard practices that are vital for achieving the Millennium Development Goals.

Our starting points are clearly set out in the text of the Convention: intangible cultural heritage must be compatible with human rights, it should promote mutual respect among communities, and it should support human, social and economic development.

More than 146 States have rallied around these objectives. The Islamic Republic of Iran was quick to ratify, in 2006, as the 40th State Party to the Convention. You have now been followed by all of your neighbours here in the region – most recently Turkmenistan and Kazakhstan within the last twelve months.

Robust in meaning, intangible cultural heritage is also vulnerable to the pressures of change.

This makes safeguarding it all the more vital.

The stakes are high, so we must set solid foundations now on which to build.

Institutes and centres under the auspices of UNESCO – in our jargon, Category 2 Centres – are important here.

As you know, such Centres are created and funded by Member States to help advance UNESCO's strategic objectives and priorities.

They are centres of excellence with unique expertise.

They amplify our messages in societies and regions across the world. And they promote networking and the exchange of information.

Through all of this, Category 2 Centres play a key role in reinforcing UNESCO's impact.

The Regional Research Centre for the Safeguarding of Intangible Cultural Heritage in West and Central Asia here in Tehran is important at all of these levels. This Centre is one of four in Asia.

As approved by the UNESCO General Conference, these Centres should work through a harmonious and effective division of labour.

The Regional Research Centre for the Safeguarding of Intangible Cultural Heritage in West and Central Asia will support a broad range of safeguarding efforts in the Islamic Republic of Iran, its neighbouring countries and other Member States in the region.

The three other Asia-Pacific Centres have more narrow specializations. The Centre in Nakai, Japan, is devoted to research on safeguarding. The Centre in Beijing, China, concentrates on training and capacity-building, while the Centre in the Republic of Korea supports information and networking. The Tehran Centre takes in all of these activities, while focussing its activities in a smaller region.

As approved by the General Conference of UNESCO, the Tehran Centre has four objectives:

- (a) to promote the 2003 Convention and its implementation;
- (b) to strengthen safeguarding capacities and international cooperation in the Region for identifying, inventorying, documenting and studying intangible cultural heritage;
- (c) to support research aimed at developing, managing and evaluating safeguarding measures;
- (d) to reinforce capacities in States for actively participating in the Convention's implementation on the regional and international level, in particular concerning shared intangible cultural heritage present in the territories of two or more States.

Category 2 Centres are part of a global network that is 84 strong – 25 of which work in the field of culture, 6 supporting UNESCO's work in safeguarding intangible cultural heritage.

In addition to the four Centres in Asia, the remaining two Centres in this field are in Bulgaria and Peru.

There is no shortage of work to safeguard intangible cultural heritage.

To reach our goals, it is important we craft a single voice and we coordinate action. This calls for regular consultation, between Centres and also with the Secretariat, to develop effective programmes.

The Director-General has asked that the work of the Centres in Asia and the Pacific be followed closely by Mr Tim Curtis, culture officer in the UNESCO Office in Bangkok, and he will take on the responsibility of serving as her representative in future meetings of this Governing Council.

The UNESCO Office in Tehran will of course continue to provide our support as the Centre now begins its operational phase.

Ladies and Gentlemen,

Managing the diversity of States has always been a central question of international relations.

Today, managing diversity within States is becoming a core issue.

This is the inspiration of UNESCO's ground-breaking Universal Declaration on Cultural Diversity, whose 10th anniversary we celebrated in 2011.

The Universal Declaration declares cultural diversity to be [I quote] "the common heritage of humanity."

Cultural diversity is a wellspring of identity, social cohesion and renewal. It is also a motor for innovation and development.

The Universal Declaration helped clear the ground for rapid agreement on the Convention for the Safeguarding of the Intangible Cultural Heritage. Our position is unambiguous.

Intangible cultural heritage must continue to be practised and transmitted for humanity to create a more peaceful and sustainable future, based on dignity and equal respect.

On behalf of the Director-General, I wish to thank the Islamic Republic of Iran for its leadership in taking this forward.

She and I wish the Tehran Centre every success as it moves from its planning phase to an active phase of serving as a regional resource for the countries of West and Central Asia.

As the Convention soon begins its own tenth year, it is time to reflect upon the lessons learnt and to take our accumulated experience further.

UNESCO looks forward to working with the Regional Research Centre for the Safeguarding of Intangible Cultural Heritage in West and Central Asia to create new networks across the region and to disseminate our message as widely as possible.

Thank you.

ARTICLE 1

INTRODUCTION

(Adopted: November 6th, 2012)

Properly safeguarded and promoted cultural heritage enjoys the potential to reinforce peaceful co-existence and rapprochement among varied cultures through encouraging mutual inter-cultural understanding and respect for cultural diversity. The outcomes will include, among others, peace and sustainable development virtually at the international level.

The unending trend of drastic developments in the domains of media and technology continues to exert negative impacts on cultural heritage; though the same trend has its own positive effects, even in the same domain, too. In the face of the increasing popularity of world media, the Intangible Cultural Heritage will, no doubt, prove as more vulnerable due to its live nature, to the extent that its endurance, coherence, and survival will be endangered. Regarding the mentioned facts, the world community, headed by UNESCO, has highlighted in its agenda the issues of safeguarding Intangible Cultural Heritage and preserving Cultural Diversity through planning and executing a number of novel strategies.

The enactment, in 2003, of the Convention for the Safeguarding of the Intangible Cultural Heritage (hereinafter, the "2003 Convention") defined the field with a determining turning point. The execution of the Convention message, however, requires full-fledged commitment on the part of the Member States, local societies, as well as the world community. On these same lines, UNESCO continues to reiterate the issues of collaboration of nations and cooperation of states to promote the 2003 Convention, especially in relation to their shared Intangible Cultural Heritages.

The West and Central Asia (hereinafter, called "the Region") constitutes a geographical territory that encompasses rich shared historical and cultural backgrounds. Collaborations of the region's states shall promote identification, documentation, research, inscription, and revitalization, as well as awareness-raising and capacity-building, and, on the whole, safeguarding of the mentioned shared Intangible Cultural Heritages.

Empowered as per Resolution 34C/DR12, whereby the Islamic Republic of Iran (hereinafter, "the Government") was granted, by the 34th Session of the General Conference of UNESCO, the permission to establish, on its territory, a Regional Research Centre for Safeguarding Intangible Cultural Heritage in West and Central Asia Under the Auspices of UNESCO (Category II) (Hereinafter, "the Centre"), the related legal and official proceedings were followed by the Government of Iran and UNESCO.

INTRODUCTION

The Regional Research Centre for Safeguarding Intangible Cultural Heritage in West and Central Asia is the fifth Category 2 centre under the auspices of UNESCO, worldwide, that is interested in the subject of the Intangible Cultural Heritage. At the same time, the Centre constitutes the fourth such centre in the Asia and Pacific Region, with the other three centres being based in the Republic of Korea, Japan, and China.

Regarding the fact that the majority of the Category 2 centres on ICH are based in Group 4 States to UNESCO (namely, the ASPAC Group), the possibility of overlaps of interests, undertakings, and duties have become a major concern for UNESCO. Although working in the same geographical territory (i.e. the Asia-Pacific Region in its totality), the Korean, Japanese, and Chinese centres have been justified, by their founders, as being thematically different, with announcing "networking", "training", and "research" as their respective themes. The issue has, however, remained as challenging, regarding the difficulty of defining each of the mentioned themes without reference to the other two.

The Regional Research Centre for Safeguarding Intangible Cultural Heritage in West and Central Asia, proposed by the Islamic Republic of Iran, however, has a clearly cut theme for its activities; the theme is "safeguarding-directed research" which makes it distinct from "research in general".

The Centre has, also, been agreed by the sides to the "Agreement Between the Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran and the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), Regarding the Establishment, in Tehran, of a Regional Research Centre for Safeguarding Intangible Cultural Heritage in West and Central Asia, Under the Auspices of UNESCO (Category 2)", dated 28 April 2010, and signed by the Director-General of UNESCO, on one side, and the Vice President of the Islamic Republic of Iran and Head of the Iranian Cultural Heritage, Handicrafts and Tourism Organization, on the other, as a Centre with activities directed toward the West and Central Asian Region. This geographical specification makes the Iranian Centre completely distinct from the other three Asian Category 2 centres; nevertheless, the phrase "West and Central Asian Region" requires elaboration.

The present document encompasses argumentations on the issue edited to justify the mentioned phrase and its terminological makeup.

ARTICLE 2

ARGUMENTS

2.1. On the Nature of the Intangible Cultural Heritage

It is unanimously agreed by all specialists and practitioners of ICH worldwide, that the Intangible Cultural Heritage is a live heritage that is constantly recreating itself in response to the changing temporal and spatial conditions. On these same lines, this heritage is, truly defined, as not being confined to the official borders of any country (Cf. the text of the 2003 Convention for the Safeguarding of the Intangible Cultural Heritage).

Consequently, regionally based identification, documentation, research, and, on the whole, safeguarding programmes define this domain with a major need.

2.2. On the Effectiveness of (sub-)Regional Endeavors to Safeguard ICH

The vast geographical territory classified, by UNESCO, as the Asia-Pacific Region encompasses a rich collection of highly varied and diversified ICH. Countless oral expressions and traditions, ritualistic behaviors and festive events, performing arts, traditional knowledge corpuses, as well as numerous types of traditional craftsmanship, are observed as scattered throughout the Pacific Sub-region, the South-eastern Sub-region, the Southern Sub-region, the Far East, the Northern Sub-region, the Central Sub-region, and the Western Sub-region.

In order for the mentioned ICH manifestations to be safeguarded most properly, sub-regional centres will, no doubt, prove as more effective; in this way larger numbers of ICH manifestations will be safeguarded simultaneously.

2.3. On the Conventional Nature of Varied Regional Classifications by International Organizations

The majority of the grouping conventions proposed by the United Nations, as well as the organizations affiliated to it, including UNESCO, as well as the other international organizations, are not able to delimit the exact territories on which the Intangible Cultural Heritage manifestations prevail.

To this fact one must add the fact that the same country is, at the same time, a member to different groupings.

2.4. On the Shared Intangible Cultural Heritage of West and Central Asia

The region proposed, through the present document, as the West and Central Asia, has been described, through a variety of scientific documents as holding a shared core of ICH distributed among the various states on the region, which has given rise to a variety of manifestations. These shared ICH manifestations include:

- Oral Traditions and Expressions: A number of Indo-European, Asiatic, and Hamito-Semitic oral traditions and expressions are vastly used by a majority of the states on the region. These traditions and expressions include the shared West and Central Asian mythology, religions, folk songs, fables and stories, among others.

- Rituals, Customs and Festive Events: Throughout the long history of the region, in the course of which the West and Central Asian nations have lived in the neighborhood of one another, a number of shared rituals, customs and festive events have been adopted by all of them. Among these, "Nowruz", "Yalda", "Islamic Festivities", "Ancient Asian Mythological Festive Events", "Traditional West and Central Asian Games", and the like are worth mentioning.

- Performing Arts: A number of various manifestations of performing arts are shared by the West and Central Asian nations. Among these, "Maqami Music", "Traditional West and Central Asian Theatre", "Traditional West and Central Asian Dance", "Traditional West and Central Asian Puppet Theatre", "Traditional West and Central Asian Poetry Recitation Gatherings", "West and Central Asian Calligraphy", etc, are worth mentioning.

- Traditional Knowledge: Living in a more or less homogeneous geographical territory of vast deserts and high mountains, the West and Central Asian nations have been able, through the long history of the region, to develop a shared body of traditional knowledge in relation to the nature and the universe. Among these, the traditional West and Central Asian "Astrology", "Medicine", "Architecture", "Agriculture", "Utilization of Non-fossil Energy Resources", and "Knowledge of the Migration Routes for the Nomad Communities on the Regions", and "Traditional West and Central Asian Cuisine", among others are but a few examples.

- Traditional Craftsmanship: The West and Central Asian handicrafts enjoy international fame. These include "Carpets", "Textiles", "Wooden Crafts", "Pottery", "Metal-work", "Jewelry", "Tile-work", "Glass-work", and the like.

While numerous, the manifestations of the abovementioned ICH domains, at the same time, define the whole West and Central Asian Region as distinct from the other Asian and Pacific sub-regions.

2.5. On the Inadequacy of the UNESCO Grouping Conventions with the West and Central Asian Intangible Cultural Heritage

The region proposed, through the present document, as the West and Central Asia, encompasses a vast territory which encompasses nations from three UNESCO Electoral Groups:

- Asia and the Pacific (7 countries): Afghanistan, Iran, Kazakhstan, the Kyrgyz Republic, Pakistan, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan,
- Europe (6 countries): Armenia, Azerbaijan, Georgia, The Russian Federation, Turkey, Uzbekistan
- Arab States(12 countries): Bahrain, Iraq, Jordan, Kuwait, Lebanon, Oman, Palestine, Qatar, Saudi Arabia, Syria, United Arab Emirates, Yemen.

As documented frequently, the mentioned nations share a number of ICH elements, which define them as a states on a distinct region of the world. Examples of these shared elements were given above, under 2.4.

A number of neighboring countries on the region belong, at the same time, to different electoral groups. Iran constitutes a good example in this regard: Among the countries neighboring Iran, Armenia, Azerbaijan, and Turkey belong to the Group of the European States, Iraq, all of the Arab nations bordering the Persian Gulf are members of the Group of Arab States, and Afghanistan and Pakistan are members of the Asia-Pacific Group.

According to some groupings, Pakistan, one of the immediate Eastern Neighbors of Iran has, even, been grouped among the South-Asian States.

The situation is at work with a number of the other States on the Region.

2.6. On the Traditional Exchange Routes Among the West and Central Asian Nations

In the course of the long history of the region, a number of modes of exchanges of cultural and scientific properties among the nations have been developed. Among these modes, the ancient and historical roads linking nations with each other have been of great importance. On these roads, a number of cultural properties have long been exchanged and borrowed by the states, especially, the neighboring ones.

Among these roads, "the Shahi Road", "the Spice Road", "the Persian Gulf Marine Routs", "the Caspian Sea Marine Routes", and the "West and Central Asian Sections of the Silk Road" are worth mentioning.

2.7. On the Possibility of Membership of One State in Several Thematically Distinct Category 2 Centres

One single state may, simultaneously, participate in the activities of several Category 2 Centres as a member, to the extent that the mentioned Category 2 Centres are thematically different. Considering the fact that the Regional Research Centre for Safeguarding Intangible Cultural Heritage in West and Central Asia, Under the Auspices of UNESCO, is thematically distinct from all of the other Category 2 Centres on ICH, any of the abovementioned 25 States can freely become a member of it, and, at the same time, join any other Centre in accordance to any other criterion.

ARTICLE 3 PROPOSAL

Regarding the fact that the Regional Research Centre for Safeguarding Intangible Cultural Heritage is based in Tehran, Islamic Republic of Iran, also considering that the territory covered by the 25 countries named above (Cf. 2.5) defines the Centre with a vast geographical domain, it is proposed that the Centre starts with defining its geographical domain by first inviting and introducing the countries from the sub-regions described below. In so doing, it is proposed that the joining process follows the order of the five groupings presented below, and justified through publishing supporting arguments and negotiations on the subject). (Note that some of the names below appear under more than one group. This shows that they can be regarded as candidates for membership in the Centre with regard to more than one criterion):

(1) The Central Asian States (6 countries): Afghanistan, Kazakhstan, the Kyrgyz Republic, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan, and Uzbekistan

(The successful collaboration of these countries as members of the Nowruz-celebrating group, to which Pakistan, India, Azerbaijan, and Turkey must be added, supports the idea.

(2) The States neighbors to Iran (7 countries):

- Afghanistan, Armenia, Azerbaijan, Iraq, Pakistan, Turkey, Turkmenistan

(3) The Arab-States on the coasts of the Persian Gulf and the Oman Sea, as well as the Arabian Peninsula (8 countries): Bahrain, Iraq, Kuwait, Oman, Qatar, Saudi Arabia, United Arab Emirates, Yemen

(4) The Caucasian States, and States neighbors to the Caspian Sea: Armenia, Azerbaijan, Georgia, Kazakhstan, Russian Federation, Turkmenistan

(5) West Asian Arab States (4 countries): Jordan, Lebanon, Palestine, Syria

INTRODUCTION

Due to its unique nature, the Intangible Cultural Heritage easily crosses the political-official borders between countries and enters the neighboring geographical domains. Consequently, the best method to study and safeguard this category of cultural heritage is constituted, in most cases, through conducting trans-border (i.e. sub-regional, regional, or international) campaigns. The Regional Research Centre for Safeguarding Intangible Cultural Heritage in West and Central Asia Under the Auspices of UNESCO, decided to be referred to with the abbreviated name Tehran ICH Centre (hereinafter, "the Centre") has been established according to the same approach. The major undertaking of the Centre is to conduct studies on the Intangible Cultural Heritage in West and Central Asia with an aim to safeguard it. Accordingly, the details of the activities of the Centre include, among others, such categories as "study", "documentation", "research", "promotion", "awareness raising", "capacity building", and "revitalization".

A category 2 centre, under the auspices of UNESCO, the Centre shall enjoy the existence of the comprehensive, systematically arranged, staffing table reflected in the present document, to be able to fulfill the commitments asserted in its constitution. Instructors: At least, two of the internationally known lecturers or trainers on ICH

Approximate Date: 1st half of the year 2013

Abstract

Regional research cooperations depend upon a background of mutual understanding among the states on the related fundamentals and methodologies to be guided in the desired direction. The concept finds full justification, specifically, in relation to safeguarding research on Intangible Cultural Heritage in West and Central Asia.

The subject of Intangible Cultural Heritage constitutes a new theme throughout the world, and not only in West and Central Asia, to the extent that disputes avail on a number of the related fundamental issues. Nevertheless, as regards the region, specifically, an urgent need for awareness raising and constructing a shared ground for planning safeguarding research activities is felt. The regional workshop proposed by the present programme has been planned with an aim to raise awareness in the West and Central Asian countries, and it is hoped that, by the time it has completed its programme, the ground needed for future specific capacity building activities directed toward individual states on the region will have been prepared. It is also hoped that the workshop will provide for facilitated processing of future safeguarding research programmes of the Tehran ICH Centre in the states on the region to the extent that proper feedback is hoped to be gathered for them.

The execution of the workshop shall be accomplished through shifting the transportation, accommodation, payment of the salaries, as well as other executive affairs to a competent contractor and through signing a contract to this effect.

4.2. Map of Successful Practices for Safeguarding Intangible Cultural Heritage in West and Central Asia (Phase 1)

Approximate Date: 1st Quarter of the year 2013.

Abstract

Safeguarding research activities on the West and Central Asian Intangible Cultural Heritage shall be properly guided and shall lead to desired outcomes, only when the fundamental concept of "West and Central Asia" is defined scientifically and the related limits are determined in a justified way. There is a need for a map of the territory encompassing the mentioned ICH on which the manifestations are identified and the convergences and divergences are presented properly, so that the ground is best prepared for future safeguarding measures to be planned.

Considering the fact that the geographical territory determined for the Centre is vast and encompasses a number of states, and that, on the other hand, the number of identifiable manifestations of ICH in each country is great, the programme proposed here will not be completed in a single time period. As a result, the project "Map of West and Central Asian ICH" shall remain on the agenda of the Tehran ICH Centre as a continuous project, and every year a new phase shall be followed in relation to a new country and/or a new domain of the ICH on the region; the project will be terminated by the time all of the ICH manifestations on the region have been taken care of. It is worth mentioning that, simultaneously, other projects of the Tehran ICH Centre shall be defined and executed parallel to this major programme.

In the course of Phase 1, the project "Map of West and Central Asian ICH" will focus on part of the Intangible Cultural Heritage of four selected countries from the four geographical groups defined for the Centre (namely, Central Asia, Arab States, Caucasia and Asia Minor, and North Asia), with one country selected from each group. to the extent
