The Group is a core organiser of the basic education of arts in crafts. The basic education means teaching the basic skills of crafts, knowledge of materials and techniques, with long term goals. The teaching hours are 29 000 yearly. In Taito Toddlers, 0-5-year olds take part of the handicraft processes through playing and sensing the materials and colours.

Supporting entrepreneurs

Taito craft associations run a chain of Taito Shops, consisting of 21 stores. Shops seek local crafts products and craft related services which are developed with the entrepreneurs. The Taito Group does business with 2220 entrepreneurs.

Taito Group offers training to craft entrepreneurs and those studying in the field to strengthen business know-how. Yearly, 21 500 hours of training are organised and participated by 1200 attendees.

Craft culture is made visible and marketing opportunities are provided in the exhibitions organized by the Taito Group. Almost 5500 entrepreneurs participate in exhibitions.

Communication and advocacy

The Taito Group publishes Taito Magazine, continuously since 1907. The magazine has six issues per year, with 6000 copies. Twice a year the Taito Group publishes a customer magazine with course information and topical.

The Taito Group conducts research about crafts entrepreneurialism as well as crafts as a hobby. The aim is to give direction into the development and to provide facts for policy making.

The Finnish Crafts Organization Taito is in a constant dialogue with the Finnish Ministry of Education and Culture about evolving the crafts. It is an expert member in several working groups of the Finnish National Agency for Education.

Every year, The Organization selects the craft of the year, which highlights the cultural heritage of the chosen craft. The organization also gives awards: every other year it alternates between the Taito Award given to a crafts entrepreneur and the young practitioners' Taito Junior Award. These are to encourage the upholders of the skills.

Intangible cultural heritage

The Finnish Crafts Organization Taito is firmly connected to executing the UNESCO Convention for the Safeguarding of the Intangible Cultural Heritage. It coordinates the national Circle of crafts, which consists of the central organisations, associations, museums and schools of the crafts sector. The circle organises seminars and events, publishes and disseminates information about the inventorying of the living cultural heritage and encourages the heritage work.

Pondering Crafts evenings, organised by the Taito Group around the country bring together professionals and hobbyists to discuss and share ideas about the activities in and around the crafts sector. The Finnish Crafts Organization Taito has produced conversation card series Pondering Crafts. This series of cards encourages conversation around the significance of the cultural heritage of crafts. Taito and its regional associations also regularly organise exhibitions exploring the cultural heritage.

The mentors of crafts traditions projects organised by Taito invites to safeguard the local craft heritage. The project is executed in cooperation with the Craft Museum as well as the local cultural actors and museum authority. The project was launched in 2018 in five Taito associations, aiming to create sustainable tools for upholding and renewing the crafts culture.

In this project the learners familiarise themselves with their local crafts culture and create works based on that. The courses and workshops organised by the Taito Group are annually attended by 109 000 craft practitioners. Teaching and training hours reach 77 000 hours a year. The courses transfer the skills to various demographics. The Taito Group has the widest service network of crafts in Finland. Practitioners are furthermore served by three buses which bring the participating opportunities to sparsely populated areas outside of major conurbations.

This mentorship programme is established as part of the function of local Taito craft associations.
