O b r a z l o ž e n j e

Umijeće sokolarenja vještina je lova s pticama grabljivicama. Pretpostavke govore da je najpovoljniji teritorij za nastanak sokolarstva bio na azijskom kontinentu prije 2 do 4 tisuće godina. Najraniji dokaz o sokolarenju na našim prostorima, japodski je prsten iz Ribića na kojem je slika psa i sokola koji leti iznad njega, a datiran je u 2. stoljeće naše ere. Sokolarstvo je prakticirano i na dvorovima hrvatskih narodnih vladara. Dokaz tome je i podatak da su kraljevi imali posebnog velikodostojnika - župana sokolara, te da su najbolji lovci sokolovima bili bogato plaćeni. No, sokolarstvo je prisutno i u svakodnevnom životu običnog pučanstva zbog jednostavnog razloga: nabave hrane. Prema radovima povjesničara Vejsila Čurčića, na hrvatskim se područjima, sve do pojave Osmanlija, za sokolarstvo koriste primarno orlovi i jastrebovi za lov s ruke sokolara, što dokazuju grobni stećci s uklesanim prizorima lova srneće i jelenske divljači s orlovima, kao i lov na zeca uz pomoć jastreba. Dolaskom Osmanlija započinje procvat sokolarstva u ovom dijelu Europe. Sokolarstvo je u osmanlijskom sustavu bilo sastavni dio javne uprave (vojnička ili poluvojnička služba dogandžija općenito označava sokolara; šahindžija je sokolar sa sokolom, čakirdžija je sokolar s bijelim jastrebom). Dokaz o razvijenom sokolarstvu u primorskoj Hrvatskoj pruža nam šibenski veterinar Jakob Viturić koji je 1526. godine napisao ljekarušu za potrebe liječenja ptica grabljivica. Tradicija sokolarstva nastavlja se kroz cijeli srednji vijek, sve do pojave vatretnog oružja, kada započinje ubrzano opadanje učestalosti bavljenja tom vrstom lova. Tokom komunističke vladavine sokolarstvo se pokušava zatrvi kao neprihvatljiv feudalni način lova. Dodatni zamah postiže se stvaranjem samostalne Hrvatske, stvaranjem uvjeta za legalan rad hrvatskih sokolara. Školovanje sokola započinje njegovim opremanjem s kožnim vezicama i zvoncem koje će nositi tijekom treninga i lova. Postupak školovanja se većim dijelom obavlja tako da sokol ima glavu pokrivenu posebnom kapicom kako bi bio izložen što manjem stresu. Prvi dan se sokola uzme na rukavicu, skine se kapica i ponudi mu se meso za jelo. Obično sokol neko vrijeme ignorira hranu jer je uplašen, ali zbog gladi s vremenom nestaje strah i sokol počinje jesti. Drugi dan se od sokola traži da zakorači i skoči na rukavicu na kojoj mu je ponuđeno meso da se najede. Nakon što to napravi, sljedećih se dana povećava udaljenost na koju sokol dolazi po hrani. Nakon što se kroz nekoliko dana postigne da sokol sam poleti za sokolarom koji glumi da odlazi, pušta ga se da slobodno leti. Kad napravi dva kruga iznad sokolara, za nagradu mu se baci vabilo s komadićem mesa koje simbolizira plijen. Taj se postupak s vabilom nastavlja dok sokol u zraku ne izdrži pola sata, leteći iznad sokolara i čekajući plijen. Tada se prelazi u lov sa sokolom: uz pomoć psa ptičara pronađe se plijen (fazan, jarebica i sl.), a sokol se pusti da čeka iznad sokolara. Kad je sokol u najpovoljnijoj poziciji podigne se plijen i u idealnim uvjetima sokol će ga uloviti. Za razliku od školovanja sokola, jastreba se odmah nakon što počne letjeti za sokolarom uzme na ruku i kreće se s njim u lov. Jastreb pokušava uloviti plijen napadajući direktno s ruke sokolara. Tijekom lova, uvijek se pušta da lovi jedna po jedna ptica. Iako je moguće školovati pticu da lovi u grupi, takvi primjeri su rijetki. U Hrvatskoj trenutno djeluje 40 sokolara koji rade na popularizaciji ove vještine, organiziranih u klubove i udruge, u skladu s ekološki održivim razvojem i dobropiti zaštićenih ptica grabljivica. Osmero njih bavi se i uzgojem ptica grabljivica za potrebe sokolara. Bavljenje sokolarstvom, uz snažnu motivaciju, traži od sokolara mnogo njegovog slobodnog vremena, te stalno umnažanje potrebnih znanja i vještina. Zbog promijenjenog odnosa prema zaštiti životinja došlo je do određenih promjena u načinu treninga, kao i opremanja životinja, što pticama omogućava kvalitetniji život. Međutim, cilj je nepromijenjen od najranijih dana: umijeće lova s pticama grabljivicama.

Donošenjem ovog rješenja, sukladno članku 12. stavku 1. Zakona o zaštiti i očuvanju kulturnih dobara na predmetno dobro primjenjuju se citirani Zakon, kao i svi drugi propisi koji se odnose na kulturna dobra. Sukladno članku 12. stavku 4. istoga Zakona, točkom 4. izreke ovog rješenja, određena je obveza upisa predmetnog dobra u Registr kulturnih dobara Republike Hrvatske – Listu zaštićenih kulturnih dobara.

Sukladno članku 12. stavku 5. Zakona o zaštiti i očuvanju kulturnih dobara, žalba protiv ovog rješenja ne zadržava njegovo izvršenje.

Iz gore navedenih razloga trebalo je riješiti kao u izreci.

Uputa o pravnom lijeku:

Protiv ovog rješenja može se izjaviti žalba ministru kulture Republike Hrvatske u roku 15 dana od primitka ovog rješenja. Explanation

The art of falconry is the skill of hunting with birds of prey. It is believed that the most favourable territory for the emergence of falconry was on the Asian continent 2 to 4 thousand years ago. The earliest evidence of falconry in present-day Croatia is a lapidian ring from Ribić with the image of a dog and a falcon flying above it. The ring has been dated to the 2nd century AD. Falconry was also practised at the courts of Croatian rulers. This is also confirmed by the fact that the kings had a special dignitary known as a prefect-falconer, and that the best falconers were well paid. However, falconry was also present in the everyday life of ordinary people for the simple reason that it supplied food. According to the works of the historian Vejsil Čurčić, until the arrival of the Ottoman Turks, falconers in Croatian territories primarily used eagles and hawks for hunting from their hands, as evidenced by gravestones with carved roe and red deer hunting scenes with eagles, as well as rabbit hunting scenes with hawks. With the arrival of the Ottomans, the flourishing of falconry in this part of Europe began. In the Ottoman system, falconry was an integral part of the public administration (the name of the military or semi-military service of dogandžije, the customs authorities, generally signifies ‘falconers’: a šahindžija is a falconer with a falcon, a čakirdžija is a falconer with a goshawk). Proof of the development of falconry in coastal Croatia is provided by a veterinarian from Šibenik, Jakob Viturić, who in 1526 wrote a book of medicines for birds of prey. The tradition of falconry continued throughout the Middle Ages until the appearance of firearms, when a rapid decrease in this type of hunting began. During communist rule, there was an attempt to exterminate falconry as an unacceptable feudal way of hunting. However, a boost occurred with the establishment of the present-day independent Croatian state, as the conditions were created for the legal activity of Croatian falconers.

Falcon training starts by equipping the bird with leather straps and a bell that it wears during training and hunting. During training, the falcon’s head is covered with a special cap to keep the stress to which it is exposed to a minimum. On the first day, the falcon is sat on a glove, its cap is removed, and it is offered meat. Usually, the falcon ignores the food for some time because it is scared, but because of hunger, with time, the fear disappears and the falcon begins to eat. On the second day, the falcon is expected to step out and leap onto the glove on which the meat is offered. After doing this, during the next few days, the distance from which the falcon comes for food is increased. After a few days, the falcon should fly after the falconer, who pretends to be leaving, and the falcon is released to fly freely. After having made two circles above the falconer, as a reward, he is thrown a piece of meat as a bait symbolising prey. The process with the bait is repeated until the falcon remains in the air for half an hour, flying above the falconer and waiting for the prey. At this point, hunting with a falcon can start: a pointing dog is sent to find the prey (a pheasant, partridge, etc.) and the falcon is left to wait above the falconer. When the falcon is in the most favourable position, the prey is raised and in ideal conditions the falcon catches it. Unlike training a falcon, a falconer takes a goshawk onto his hand as soon as it begins to fly after the falconer, and the hunting may begin. The goshawk tries to catch the prey by attacking directly from the hand of the falconer. During hunting, one bird at a time is released to catch the prey. Although it is possible to train birds to hunt in a group, such examples are rare. In Croatia, there are currently 40 falconers, organised in clubs and associations, working on the popularisation of this skill in accordance with the ecologically sustainable development and well-being of protected birds of prey. Eight of them also deal with breeding birds of prey for the needs of falconers. Apart from strong motivation, falconry requires a lot of time, and the constant development of knowledge and skills. Due to a changed attitude towards animal protection, there have been some changes in the training and equipping of birds which enable them to have a better quality of life. However, the goal has remained unchanged from the earliest days: the art of hunting with birds of prey.

With the adoption of this Decision, pursuant to Article 12, Paragraph 1 of the Act on the Protection and Preservation of Cultural Goods, the mentioned Act as well as all other regulations related to cultural goods apply to the said good.

Pursuant to Article 12, Paragraph 4 of the same Act, Point 4 of this Decision stipulates the obligation to enter the good in the Register of Cultural Goods of the Republic of Croatia – List of Protected Cultural Goods.

Pursuant to Article 12, Paragraph 5 of the Act on the Protection and Preservation of Cultural Goods, an appeal against this Decision shall not delay its execution.

For the reasons outlined above, it was necessary to resolve this as in the statement.

Legal remedy:

An appeal to the Minister of Culture of the Republic of Croatia may be filed against this decision within 15 days of the receipt of the Decision. The appeal shall be submitted directly or sent by registered mail to the Ministry of Culture, Runjaninova 2, 10000 Zagreb, or may be given as a verbal notice of appeal on the record. In accordance with Article 7, Paragraph 1, Item 19 of the Administrative Tax Act (Official Gazette 8/96, 77/96, 131/97, 68/98), an appeal shall not be subject to an administrative fee.
