Summary:

The Regional Bureau for Education in Latin America and the Caribbean (OREALC/UNESCO Santiago) through its LLECE Laboratory, invites the launch of the main results of the socio-emotional skills module of the Regional Comparative and Explanatory Study – (ERCE 2019), UNESCO effort with 16 countries in Latin America and the Caribbean.

In this event will present the main results of the socio-emotional skills module of the Regional Comparative and Explanatory Study - ERCE 2019, administered in 16 countries in Latin America and the Caribbean.

This module is an innovation of the current cycle of the Laboratory's studies. It provides information on the development of some socio-emotional skills in sixth-grade students who participated in ERCE 2019.

In addition to the results related to this module, in the event will present an analysis of associated factors with the educational and family context of the students to study those related to the development of these socio-emotional skills.

There will be the participation of various government authorities and international organizations, who will comment on the study results.

This event has the support of the UNICEF Regional Office for Latin America and the Caribbean.
