I. The Hague Convention of 1954

|  | 1. | Article 3 | - Safeguard | ing of cultu | ıral propert |
|--|----|-----------|-------------|--------------|--------------|
|--|----|-----------|-------------|--------------|--------------|

This Article provides for the obligation of the High Contracting Parties to adopt relevant peacetime safeguarding measures against the foreseeable effects of an armed conflict.

| Has your State undertaken such measures?  |
|---|
| YES: NO:  |
| You can complete your answer below, taking into account the guidelines in the model report.   |
| Finland has structured its readiness during the years for the implementation of the Hague 1954 Convetion and its two protocols.   |
| 2. Article 6 - Use of the distinctive emblem for the marking of cultural property   |
|   |
| The 1954 Hague Convention creates a distinctive emblem for the exclusive marking of cultural property, with a view to ensure its recognition, particularly in the event of armed conflict. The marking of cultural property is one of the preparatory measures that can be undertaken in time of peace.   |
| <ul> <li>Has your State marked cultural property by using the distinctive emblem of theConvention?</li> </ul>  |
| YES: NO: X  |
| You can complete your answer below, taking into account the guidelines in the model report.   |
| At the moment, there is no intention to mark the cultural property.   |
| 3. Article 7 - Military measures  |
| This Article provides for the obligations of the High Contracting Parties with regard to the introduction in their regulations or instructions for the use of their armed forces of provisions to ensure compliance with the Convention, as well as to plan or establish within their armed forces services or specialist personnel whose purpose will be to secure respect for cultural property and to co-operate with the civilian authorities responsible for safeguarding such property. These are obligations to be implemented in time of peace. |
| Has your State introduced provisions in the regulations and instructions for your armed forces to ensure compliance with the Convention?  YES: NO:  |

You can complete your answer below, taking into account the guidelines in the model report.

No special service has been created or appointed in the Finnish defence forces to secure respect for cultural property. The observance of international humanitarian law is compulsory for the personnel of the Finnish defence forces, and in particular for the leaders. Knowledge of cultural property and respect for it is included in military training on every level.

| •           | • | r State established services or designated specialist personnel within you rces to ensure respect for cultural property? |
|-------------|---|---|
| YES:        |   | NO:   |
| Yourepo |   | plete your answer below, taking into account the guidelines in the model  |

The Finnish Defence Forces give training on international humanitarian law including the Convention to conscripts, reservists and its personnel through lessons and exercises on every level of military education and training. Training implemented for officers is given mostly by military legal advisors and other legal and military specialists with academic degree. Protecting cultural property is also established as a part of humanitarian law training provided by the Finnish Red Cross for the Defence Forces.

4. Article 25 - Dissemination of the Convention

Regulations relating to the protection of cultural property in time of armed conflict must be included into the programmes of military and, if possible, civilian training. The objective is to ensure that the principles of the Convention are known by the whole population, especially the armed forces and personnel engaged in the protection of cultural property.

| You can comple report. | te your answer below, taking into account the guidelines in the model |

Has your State disseminated the provisions of the Convention within the armed

The Finnish Defence Forces give training on international humanitarian law including the Convention to conscripts, reservists and its personnel through lessons and exercises.

There are also several other educational activities for various target groups. The Emergency Services College (Pelastusopisto) provides education and training in its special field under the supervision of the Ministry of the Interior. The College plans and arranges basic and advanced education and training in fire and rescue work, civil defence training and other training in emergence operations. As part of its work, the College has also arranged special education on the protection of cultural heritage.

Protecting cultural property is part of preparedness training in the education and cultural sector also at the municipal level. In recent years, a number of regional training courses have been organised for the representatives of education and cultural services, including museums, archives and libraries.

Protecting cultural property is also an established part of humanitarian law training provided by the Finnish Red Cross for the Defence Forces.

Preparedness concerning cultural property is not governed by specific legislation in Finland, and practical action to safeguard such property would be taken under the Emergency Powers Act and the Rescue Act. The Emergency Powers Act guides the actions of the authorities in emergency conditions and includes the duty to secure the performance of vital activities in all circumstances.

Self-preparedness under the Rescue Act, on the other hand, in practice concerns everyone, obliging the owners and occupants of buildings to prevent and prepare for accidents and hazardous situations as far as their resources allow.

Within the administrative branch of the Ministry of Education and Culture, the National Archives Services is the organisation that has the authority to issue regulations and to direct preparedness activities concerning archives. As regards museums, libraries and buildings of cultural history value, there are no similar means of control. Key regulative measures include various types of guidelines and recommendations as well as training, and possibly also grants for the owners. In other words, safeguarding cultural property in practical terms to a great extent depends on self-preparedness and cooperation between the authorities.

In the Rescue Act, the impacts of accidents on cultural property are highlighted as one complex issue. For sites where a fire or other accident would put property of cultural history value at risk, an emergency plan must be drawn up. In addition, sites of cultural history value are accounted for in regional risk analyses drawn up by the rescue services in the future. Cultural history sites have similarly also been taken into consideration as a special group in the national implementation of the EU Floods Directive. The Floods Directive contains the requirement of taking national cultural heritage into account in regional risk assessments.

VII. Enhanced protection mechanism – Opinion survey

Pursuant to Chapter 3 of the 1999 Second Protocol, enhanced protection is granted by the Committee for the Protection of Cultural Property in the Event of Armed Conflict if three criteria are cumulatively met:

- ✓ Cultural property is of the greatest importance to humanity;
- ✓ Cultural property is protected by adequate domestic, legal and administrative measures recognising its exceptional cultural and historical value and ensuring the highest level of protection; and
- ✓ Cultural property must not be used for military purposes or to shield military sites. And the Party which has control over the cultural property has to make a declaration confirming that it will not be used for military purposes or to shield military sites.

As these conditions are set out in an international treaty, their interpretation cannot be made independently of State practice, which is of fundamental importance under international treaty law. Therefore, this national report is an opportunity for the national authorities of the Parties to express their views on the conditions under which enhanced protection is granted.

For each of the conditions set out in Article 10 of the Second Protocol, please answer the following questions, taking into consideration the relevant paragraphs of the Guidelines for the Implementation of the Second Protocol.

Article 10, paragraph (a) - "The greatest importance for humanity"

Please list the main factors to be undertaken into consideration in determining whether a cultural property is of the greatest importance for humanity?

The criteria in the "Guidelines for the Implementation of the 1999 Second Protocol to the Hague Convention of 1954 for the Protection of Cultural Property in the Event of Armed Conflict" give already a good starting point to determine the greatest importance for humanity.

Article 10, paragraph (b) - "The highest level of protection"

Please mention the national authorities to be consulted in determining the choice of measures to be adopted to ensure the highest level of protection for a cultural property for which enhanced protection is requested. What measures can ensure the highest level of protection?

Ministry of Education and Culture and Finnish Heritage Agengy.

Article 10, paragraph (c) - "Not-used for military purposes"

Please mention the national authorities to be consulted in order to take the decision not to use the proposed cultural property for granting enhanced protection for military purposes or to shield military sites?
