UNESCO CREATIVE CITIES NETWORK CALL FOR APPLICATIONS 2021

APPLICATION GUIDELINES

UNESCO CREATIVE CITIES NETWORK

2021 CALL FOR APPLICATIONS

I. GENERAL PRINCIPLES

WHAT IS THE UNESCO CREATIVE CITIES NETWORK?

The UNESCO Creative Cities Network (UCCN) was created in 2004 to foster international cooperation within and across cities worldwide that utilize culture and creativity as a strategic lever for sustainable urban development.

The Network brings together cities from all continents and regions with different geo-demographic, economic, social, cultural and environmental settings. They work together towards a common mission: placing culture and creativity at the core of their urban development plans to make cities safe, resilient, inclusive, sustainable and future-proof in line with the United Nations 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, notably Goal 11: Make cities inclusive, safe, resilient and sustainable.

The Creative Cities Network is composed of cities committed to pooling their resources, their experiences and knowledge for the common objectives set forth in the Network's Mission Statement, and to actively cooperating at the international level through inter-city partnerships.

As laboratories of ideas and innovative practices, the UNESCO Creative Cities Network brings a tangible contribution to achieving the Sustainable Development Goals through people-centered policymaking as well as place-based projects and initiatives. The Network further brings forth cities' central role in sustainable development, highlighting the importance of the local dimension in the process.

HOW ARE CITIES SELECTED?

The Call for Applications is open to all cities of UNESCO's Member States and Associate Members¹.

A city may be designated as a UNESCO Creative City based on its assets and capacity in culture and creativity, but also on the content, impact and outreach of its proposed action plan. It shall also demonstrate its potential contribution to the Network's overall vision and objectives, as well as its commitment to UNESCO's mandate and the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

The Director-General of UNESCO is responsible for the designation of the cities in conformity with the guidelines set out below, following the internal technical pre-screening and an external evaluation with:

- (i) UNESCO-designated independent experts specialized in the seven creative fields covered by the UNESCO Creative Cities Network and other cultural and creative sectors, and/or in urban development;
- (ii) The member cities that are representative of the seven creative fields: Crafts and Folk Art, Design, Film, Gastronomy, Literature, Media Arts and Music.

The UNESCO designation indicates recognition of the quality, relevance and feasibility of the strategy and proposed action plan outlined in the application to implement the objectives of the Network.

¹. Please refer to the complete list of UNESCO's Member States and Associate Members at <https://en.unesco.org/countries>

Cities that are members recognize the importance of sustainable and inclusive urban development, and therefore commit to enhancing the contribution of culture and creativity to the implementation of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

Applications shall focus primarily on the chosen creative field among the seven creative fields covered by the Network. Applicant cities are nevertheless also encouraged to address other creative fields covered by the Network, highlighting existing and/or potential synergies between them.

UNESCO reserves itself the right to restrict the Call for Applications, taking into account specific geographical or thematic priorities, and may limit the maximum number of designations. As of the 2021 Call, a maximum of two applications from the same country, and in two different creative fields, can be eligible for designation.

Moreover, applications from under-represented regions² especially those from Africa and Arab States within the Network will be encouraged in order to enhance the Network's geographical representation. The specific cooperation framework will be made available again to cities from these two regions in the current Call (please refer to the Annex for further details on the Cooperation Framework).

Cities that have submitted an application to the UNESCO Creative Cities Network as part of two consecutive calls and that did not receive designation, shall respect a moratorium of 4 years before presenting a new application³.

Applicant cities must commit to the implementation of all the objectives laid out in the Network's Mission Statement, as well as respond to all the criteria set out below, which will be used to guide the evaluation process:

(1) Motivation for the application and the primary development opportunities and challenges to be met, global development vision, strategies and policies as well as expected impact of the designation (Sections 6, 7 and 8 of the Application Form):

- Demonstrated commitment of the applicant city to helping achieve the objectives of the Network, at both the local and the international level;
- Existing development strategies and policies in place that support in further strengthening culture's and creativities' role in the implementation of the 2030 Agenda;
- Coherence of the objectives and priorities of the applicant city with the objectives and fields of action of the UNESCO Creative Cities Network; and
- Expected mid- and long-term impacts of the designation on the sustainable development of the city.

² Regions defined by UNESCO are Africa, Arab States, Asia and the Pacific, Europe and North America, and Latin America and the Caribbean. For more information, please refer to the 2020 edition of UNESCO's Basic Text: <https://unesdoc.unesco.org/ark:/48223/pf0000372956/PDF/372956eng.pdf.multi> (Page: 141-143)

- Participation of the local creative sector concerned (creators, professional organizations, cultural enterprises, etc.) in the design and preparation of the application.

(3) Comparative assets that the applicant city would bring to the Network (Section 10 of the Application Form):

- Existence, at the time of application, of a development strategy or actions and initiatives aimed at strengthening the role of culture and creativity in the socio-economic development of the city and in urban regeneration;

- For the 2021 Call for Applications, a maximum of two applications in two different creative fields from the same Member State or Associate Members can be submitted. Consequently, the National Commission concerned is requested to endorse a maximum of two applications in two different creative fields from the country.
- In order to strengthen the geographical representation of the Network, please note that the Cooperation Framework specifically targeting applicant cities from Africa and Arab States, which are currently under-represented within the Network, is being continued for the 2021 UCCN Call. Please refer to the Annex hereto.

The designated cities commit to submitting the quadrennial Membership Monitoring Report as of their designation in order to ensure their commitment and active contribution to the achievement of the objectives of the UNESCO Creative Cities Network as well as to promote the exchange of information and good practices between member cities.

II. GUIDELINES FOR APPLYING

HOW TO APPLY?

To become a member of the UCCN, applicant cities must submit an application that clearly demonstrates their assets, commitment and capacity to contribute to the objectives of the Network through the implementation of the city's action plan proposed in the application.

These guidelines are intended to assist applicant cities in developing and completing the Application Form.

KEY FACTORS TO CONSIDER DURING THE PREPARATION OF AN APPLICATION

In the preparation of an application to the UNESCO Creative Cities Network, it is highly advised that applicants carefully consider the following factors:

- Participatory process: The preparation and formulation of the application must be led by the municipality and should result from a participative process involving relevant stakeholders and partners of the public and private sectors as well as civil society.
- Forward-looking approach: The cultural heritage and current creative assets of the applicant city should be the pillars to build a consistent and progressive action plan, which contributes to the sustainable urban development of the city in line with the UN 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and its 17 Sustainable Development Goals. The objectives of the UCCN revolves primarily around a strategic approach and impactful projects.
- Inclusive sustainable development: UNESCO's Creative Cities foster sustainable urban development building on culture and creativity as a lever to achieve development goals. In this context, when applying and formulating their activities and programmes of the action plan, cities have to demonstrate their engagement towards the implementation of the UN's 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development at the city level, building on an inclusive approach to development encompassing the economic, social and environmental dimensions.
- Long-term commitment: Cities should take note that the designation as a UNESCO Creative City implies a continuous and active commitment towards UNESCO's value and mandate, as well as the implementation of the UCCN's objectives as outlined in the Mission Statement. In particular, applicant cities must be committed to preparing and consistently implementing an action plan, regularly reporting on their achievements through the quadrennial Membership Monitoring Report, actively participating in the UCCN Annual Conferences, as well as supporting and contributing to activities undertaken by UNESCO and the UCCN Secretariat through direct participation or voluntary contributions, amongst others.
- Sustainable action plan, capacities and resources: The application should include a proposed strategy for the city, accompanied by a four-year action plan setting out specific projects and initiatives at the local and international level to be implemented following the possible designation. The action plan should also provide detailed indications of priorities, capacities and resources (both financial and human). The expected outcome and impact of the proposed initiatives and projects to be undertaken by the city (if designated) will be subject to an evaluation through the aforementioned monitoring and reporting process.
- Exchanges and cooperation: Exchanges between and across member cities are critical for the development, strengthening and credibility of the Network and are one of its cornerstones. It is therefore important for applicant cities to demonstrate both their commitment and capacities to develop activities and collaborative initiatives at the national, regional and international levels with UNESCO and the members of the Network.

PREPARING THE APPLICATION

Who should be involved in the application process?

The city should first establish a management/coordination team within the municipality or a specific department, centre or entity in charge of developing the application's contents and designate a focal point who will act as the liaison person with UNESCO. This team will be ultimately responsible for drafting the application. In case of designation, the team along with a representative of the municipality may also be responsible for carrying out the day-to-day management of activities related to the Network.

Although the application must be led by local public authorities, it should also reflect wide stakeholder consultation and support across the city and genuinely speak on behalf of the communities concerned, the public and private sectors, as well as civil society of the city. It is therefore important to elaborate the application in close collaboration with all relevant stakeholders and actors such as creators, professionals from the cultural and creative industries, universities and academia, policy makers, youth leagues, non-governmental organizations and associations, as well as different relevant public authorities or departments in the areas of culture, education, social affairs, economic development, urban infrastructure, communication, planning, etc.

Once relevant stakeholders have been identified, it is strongly advised to establish a consultative group that will support the preparation of the application. Such a consultative group can be made up of a diverse range of stakeholders and actors, including high-level representatives from the municipal government, representatives from civil society, cultural practitioners and producers, key operators of the creative sector, and other related professional associations and organizations.

Sequence for preparing an application

Although there is no universal and standard process for the preparation of an application, the following chart with the highlighted main steps of the process could be used as inspiration:

A PREPARATORY TIMELINE

-  Municipality (Mayor) decides to prepare application
-  Establish management/coordination team and focal point
-  Identify relevant stakeholders - within the city and at regional and international level
-  Establish a consultative group involving relevant stakeholders from all sectors
-  Implement relevant background research and prepare mapping of creative assets of the city
-  Draft a mid-term (4-year) strategy and action plan implementing the Network's objectives at local and international levels
-  Plan management unit responsible for undertaking the day-to-day activities of the Network (in case of designation)
-  Propose adequate budget and explore funding opportunities
-  Mayor writes formal letter presenting the application
-  Obtain formal support from national professional associations
-  Obtain formal endorsement from the National Commission for UNESCO
-  Submit application with all required documents by submission deadline

When adapting this proposed sequence for preparing an application to an applicant city's context, please consider the following issues:

- Drafting and submitting an application can take longer than anticipated. Adequate time needs to be dedicated to the preparation phase, the constitution of a management team and the consultative group.
- The management team and the focal point should start by reading carefully the UCCN Mission Statement, Application Form and the present Application Guidelines. Additional information on the Network and its activities is available on the website: <http://en.unesco.org/creative-cities/>.
- Ensure an active participation of all the relevant local stakeholders and actors to ensure engagement and ownership of the process. These serve to gather the necessary information on the cultural assets, experiences and expertise of the city, sketch out the main lines of the city's vision, strategy and action plan.

Filling the Application Form

Applications must be submitted using the official 2021 Application Form available on the UCCN website. The standard application form is prepared by the Secretariat of the UNESCO Creative Cities Network and shall not be altered in any way. Applicant cities should only use this standard form for submitting their application for consideration and evaluation.

Please note, a word limit has been set in each section of the Application Form. Therefore, it will not be possible to enter additional text once the limit is reached. Applicant cities can use the 'Word Count' function to keep track of the word limit.

All the sections of the Application Form must be completed to be considered complete and valid.

Applicant cities are encouraged to provide relevant information following the instructions provided in the Application Form. The information provided should not be repeated across different sections unless it is relevant to the concerned sections. It is thus important to note that providing irrelevant information is strongly discouraged.

Applicant cities should provide brief answers to each section and avoid a simple listing of activities, initiatives or infrastructures. Information provided should be recent and relevant in order for the evaluators to assess the cultural and creative assets of the city as well as the feasibility and potential of the proposed action plan.

In case, the applicant city has no relevant information related to a particular section or field, the city is requested to enter the following phrase "No relevant information to provide" for the part concerned.

The application must be consistent and succinct, and written in clear and fluent English or French. Applications submitted in other languages will not be taken into consideration. When neither of the working languages is familiar to the team/person drafting the application, we recommend writing the application in a native language and then translating the final version through a certified translator. Poorly translated applications may lead to confusion in the evaluation phase.

Submit the application

The application must be submitted via email to: ccnapplications@unesco.org, with the "subject": 2021 Application of [name of the applicant city]. This email must include the following attachments:

The total size of the email with all required attachments included must not exceed 30MB.

No other document or attachment will be accepted and considered in the evaluation process. A maximum of 2 URL links to related websites may be included in the Application Form, providing additional information about the city and/or the creative field concerned (please refer to the Form). The applicant city is also encouraged to provide information related to social media handles for the city (Twitter, Facebook, Instagram, etc.).

How many cities per country can receive the endorsement of the National Commission for UNESCO concerned to submit their application?

For the 2021 Call for Applications, a maximum of two applications in two different creative fields from a same Member State or Associate Members can be submitted. Consequently, the National Commission for UNESCO of the country in which the applicant city is located can endorse a maximum of two applications in two different creative fields from the country.

Kindly note, a formal letter of support from the National Commission concerned is required to complete the application file. Incomplete application files including those lack of the support letter will result in the applications being automatically deemed invalid.

How many cities per country may be eligible to the designation?

As of the 2021 Call, a maximum of two applications from the same country, and in two different creative fields, may be eligible for designation.

When will we know if our city's application is successful?

The announcement of the designation will be published on the UCCN website and through other UNESCO communication channels and networks on 29 October 2021 (the confirmed date will be announced on the UCCN website in due course). A formal letter will be sent to each of the eligible cities (whose applications will be evaluated) to inform the result in the days following the designation announcement.

To allow for a considered and impartial evaluation of the applications, we kindly ask applicant cities to refrain from requesting information on their applications or the evaluation during the process.

Who evaluates the application?

The evaluation process is coordinated by UNESCO. The process foresees a technical pre-screening and an external independent evaluation by experts, also involving member cities of the Network. To protect the independence of the evaluators, no information on their identity nor evaluation is communicated.

Applicant cities are required not to exert any influence or lobby during the evaluation process. The final decision on designation lies with the Director-General of UNESCO, following consultation with external advice provided by independent experts as well as by the existing member cities organised in the seven creative fields.

Whom can we contact if we encounter technical problems with our application?

It is advisable that you prepare your application as early as possible. UNESCO Secretariat will only be able to provide technical assistance with your application should there be sufficient time available.

Moreover, it is not UNESCO's responsibility to either follow up on the individual application process of the applicant cities or give specific orientations or guidance for each case.

Please contact us at ccnapplications@unesco.org for any technical difficulties or general inquiries about the application process.

Do we need to specify a creative field in our application?

Yes, a creative field must be specified, and the application submitted must focus on that particular creative field. The creative fields covered by the Network are the following: Crafts and Folk Art, Design, Film, Gastronomy, Literature, Media Arts and Music.

Can a city apply for more than one creative field?

Please note that an applicant city can choose only one of the seven creative fields covered by the Network. This field should be considered as the focus of the application albeit such creative field may interact with other creative fields within the city. Innovative and transversal approaches across various creative fields are encouraged.

Can we involve the adjacent areas of the city in the candidature?

While it is possible for the applicant city to involve the adjacent region in the application process and reflect the latter's contribution to the proposed strategy and related action plan. However, the applicant city must bear primary responsibility and accountability for the application and the proposed strategy and action plan put forward in the application. In case of designation, only the city will receive the designation and become a member of the Network.

Does the size of a city matter?

Currently, there is no limitation to the number of inhabitants in a city applying for the membership of the Network. However, only cities can be members of the Network.

We have additional media items we would like to attach to our application, how could we provide these?

Submissions can only be made using the standard Application Form through email. Items in hard copy will not be accepted.

However, a maximum of two external links to websites can be inserted within the Application Form, alongside the information related to social media handles (for example, Facebook, Instagram, Twitter, etc) for the city.

Can we insert images, charts or diagrams directly in our application?

In order to standardize the evaluation process, it is not possible to include images, charts or diagrams directly in the Application Form, although three photos of the applicant city must be included in the application email. However, in case of designation, a city can submit these additional materials with a view to reinforcing the communication and outreach aspects towards the other member cities.

Which considerations should guide the proposed budget in the application?

There is no minimal or maximum set amount foreseen for the provisional budget included in the application. However, the evaluators will assess the quality of the strategy and action plan through the consistency, feasibility and sustainability of the proposed budget corresponding to the planned activities. The budget proposed should fit a city's size, resources and ambitions.

COOPERATION FRAMEWORK FOR APPLICANT CITIES FROM AFRICA AND ARAB STATES

Promoting cultural diversity and strengthening geographical outreach: a global commitment

UNESCO stands for cultural diversity as a source of enrichment for all of humanity. The UNESCO Creative Cities Network, an international network of exchange and cooperation for cities, aims to ensure geographical representation of cities across all continents. It is committed to strengthening “cooperation with and among cities that have recognized creativity as a strategic factor of sustainable development as regards to economic, social, cultural and environmental aspects”. Building partnerships and exchanging knowledge and practices among member cities are one of the Network’s founding principles and objectives.

Beyond significant efforts to improve the cultural diversity and geographical representation of the Network, cities from the Global South are still under-represented among its members. A majority of the over 80 countries represented in the Network are from the Global North. This imbalance was acknowledged by UNESCO and the member cities as a key challenge to be addressed.

First introduced in 2017, the specific cooperation framework was open to applicant cities from the Africa region. During the 2019 Call for Applications, the cooperation mechanism was further extended to technically support applicant cities from the Arab States region.

With the objective to further this effort, for the 2021 Call for Applications, the cooperation framework will be continued to encourage the applications from Africa and the Arab States regions⁶.

Ensuring the diversity of the Network’s member cities is critical to ensure the Network’s sustainability and outreach, as well as its capacity to demonstrate the power of creativity for sustainable development in diverse economic, social, cultural and environmental contexts.

Opening up the Network to cities from the Global South also offers the opportunity to explore new dimensions of creativity, often intimately linked to local development, which can be a source of mutual learning for member cities. The enhancement also aligns with UNESCO’s commitment to strengthening North-South and South-South cooperation towards building sustainable and resilient cities of tomorrow and achieving the 17 Sustainable Development Goals.

Creating effective cooperation: pairing applicants with member cities

Cities from the Global South have specific expectations from the Network, including receiving practical support and possibilities of mentoring. Similarly, some member cities have expressed their willingness to commit to broader, more systematic cooperation with their counterparts from the Global South to support their applications and active participation in the Network.

Through this specific Cooperation Framework, UNESCO invites applicant cities from Africa and the Arab States to express their interest in cooperation with current member cities in the preparation of their application, but also, eventually, in the implementation of their action plan in case of their designation. Meanwhile, UNESCO encourages member cities to commit to this Cooperation Framework and to express their interest in a city-to-city partnership.

Expressions of interest from applicant cities of these two regions shall reach UNESCO no later than 30 March 2021. The UCCN Secretariat will then coordinate with the creative clusters concerned to find member cities interested in partnering with the requesting cities. If successful, the Secretariat will liaise with the paired cities so as to establish the cooperation between them by 9 April 2021.

NOTE: While the cooperation framework aims to improve the graphical representation within the Network, it does not prejudge the final decision on the designation, which is based on the evaluations undertaken by the independent external experts and the member cities.

Selected applicant cities will receive technical support from their counterpart city in the preparation of their application. The support may be provided in the form of technical assistance, field missions and/or partnering according to the pairs' mutual agreement. Partner cities are encouraged to pursue their cooperation if the applicant city is designated, so as to facilitate the smooth implementation of the proposed action plan as well as extend the scope and the impact of this Cooperation Framework through potential collective activities and programmes.
